

Swain School to reopen for elementary classes

by Debbi Michals
In an effort to reduce elementary classroom size, the Wilmington School Committee voted at its August 12 meeting to reopen the Swain School and place approximately eight additional classes in the building. This proposal came at the beginning of a discussion about what the board's top priorities are in providing adequate education for Wilmington.

Acting Superintendent Dr. Carol Sager introduced the plan by first reminding the school committee that it had previously agreed that once the state aid comes in, the first priority would be finding a solution to the overcrowded classrooms at the elementary level. She followed this remark by stating that 71 percent of the aid money was in school-related reimbursements, and that due to this fact the schools should get an equitable portion of the funds.

To solve this problem, Sager said, they could create at least eight additional classes, one at each level from one to six, with two at grade three, and two at one other grade where there is a need for it. That would reduce class size down to an average of 22 to 26 children per class, with no class having an enrollment of over 28.

"That's entirely within possibility considering the amount of state aid that we would get back," Sager said.

She then presented the committee with two possible alternatives regarding the placement of these additional classrooms and ask them to make their decision based on a plan that would cause the fewest disruptions.

The first option she cited was to consolidate the classes at the intermediate school so that 10 classes of sixth graders could be moved into that building, leaving the remaining two sixth grade classes at the Wildwood School. This would make room for the eight new classes at the Shawsheen and Woburn Street schools.

The other alternative Sager mentioned was to reopen a small school in the central district, which would lower class size at the Shawsheen, Woburn Street, and Wildwood schools. Under this proposal, all the children live in walking distance of the school, so no transportation will have to be provided for them.

The first option met with a good deal of opposition, beginning with committeeman Demos, who said that for five years these children have been in the self-contained environment of elementary school, and are not prepared for such a sudden switch. By the time they are in the sixth grade, he continued, they already have in mind that they have grown up somewhat and are ready to move on to a higher form of education. At the elementary level, he went on, the child is looked at as a total person and is made to feel good about himself in that sense. Kids from 12 on, he said, go through a period of mental changes and growth. The "I" concept comes into play, he explained, as they begin to wonder who they are, where they are going, and what they are doing. They look up to older kids a good deal, too, he added. The sixth graders at a junior high level will be greatly influenced by the attitudes of their older peers, he said. For this reason as well as many others, Demos said, he was strongly opposed to this plan. He also noted that elementary education is from grades one through six, and it should remain that way.

Not retiring

McMeniman said that to say elementary education is traditionally from grades one through six is a fallacy. The needs of each individual system dictate what will be termed elementary grade levels. In Cambridge, she cited, grades one to eight are considered elementary.

Bridget Zukas told the committee that she had received quite a few phone calls from parents who told her that they are against moving sixth graders to the junior high. She said that she would have been amenable to the idea, but added, "My philosophy is that the schools belong to the people, and if they don't want their sixth graders in the junior high, well, that's the way it should be."

Brooks said that under the worst conditions, he would have gone along with the idea of placing sixth graders in the junior high, but added that he would prefer to see them in an elementary setting where they can be dealt with as elementary children. But, he reminded the board, "Any decision we make can't be divorced from the fiscal realities."

In response to that Sager said that they need to anticipate the available funding in order to bring back some of the services to the children by the first day of school. She added that they must prioritize what they will do once they know what money is indeed available. She also assured the board as well as the many parents present that despite what they might think, the Swain School would be less costly to open than one of the newer schools such as the Glen Road. They will only need eight classrooms, she went on, which is exactly what the Swain provides. To go with the Glen Road would mean heating quite a few rooms that would not be in use and would also require transportation, she explained. All the students who will be going to the Swain School live within walking distance of the school, she added, so no transportation will be necessary.

The committee voted unanimously to reopen the Swain School and rehire the additional staff needed. In a later interview, Sager explained that the Swain will be open along with the rest of the Wilmington schools come September 9. In order to compensate for all the costs involved, the school department will be forwarding funds that they are not yet in possession of, she said. According to Sager they have not come up with any alternative course of action in the event that the town votes not to grant them the money at town meeting. She said she is confident that the town will rule in their favor because "the town has always been for the best interests of the children," and added that it is far less expensive in the long run to provide adequate education than it is to provide compensatory services for adults who were not properly prepared.

Town manager gives recommendations

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski Tuesday night presented the finance committee with his recommendations regarding the expenditure of all additional funds available to the town. This figure, a firm $539,251.08, is the difference between the present amount to be raised by taxation ($10,095,623.92) and the amount they can raise and still be within the levy limit set by the Department of Revenue ($11,234,875.00). The elements that combine to equal that sum are $331,103 in additional local aid, $75,000 in additional free cash, and $132,752 in additional estimated receipts for 1980.

Based on this figure, he then presented the committee with his list of recommendations as to how the money should be appropriated by the town meeting. The acting superintendent and every member of the school committee was present with the exception of Phil Fenton as he went through the list.

Because three of the four town employees who were laid off found employment, Stapczynski said, there is a surplus of $50,000 in the unemployment payments account. From that excess he recommends that $15,000 be added to the maintenance of public buildings account to pay for the custodian at the Swain School if it is reopened, and $35,000 be placed in the reserve fund to handle any unforeseen emergency that comes up. That money could also be used to train some police personnel in the

Town of Wilmington Finance Committee Public Hearing

The Wilmington Finance Committee will hold a public hearing on September 2, 1981 at 7:30 p.m. in the Wilmington Memorial Library Conference Room on the warrant articles for the Special Town Meeting to be held September 14, 1981.

Mary J. Deislinger, Chairman
Wilmington Finance Committee

Will there be a 'special' special town meeting?

Will the proposed wetland bylaws of the Wilmington Conservation Commission be in the warrant for the special town meeting of September 14? Will there be a special town meeting in the special town meeting - that is, a separate warrant, but at the same time? Will there be a special town meeting at another date, to discuss the proposed wetland bylaws?

All three possibilities now face the town. A fourth possibility is that there will be nothing done, on wetland bylaws. That seems to be, at this writing, improbable.

Chester Bruce, chairman of the Conservation Commission, presented the proposed bylaws to the selectmen in their meeting last week. The proposed bylaws were not included in the warrant for the special town meeting of September 14, which the selectmen set at that meeting. The bylaw proposal is now in the office of the town counsel, for a routine study, before being included in the warrant for any town meeting.

Selectman Bob Cain is also having a study of the proposed bylaw, by two individuals not in any official position with the town, something that can be called an "outside review."

Bruce, who had been hoping the bylaws would be in the warrant for the special town meeting, left the selectmen's meeting with the possible idea of having a "special town meeting in the special town meeting."

This is an old town meeting maneuver. To Bruce the benefit was that there would be no duplication of costs, for the second town meeting, and the town would save money.

Members of the Conservation Commission and others have collected 250 signatures for such a special town meeting, to vote on the proposed bylaws.

The difficulty is that, according to some observers, the form used for collecting those signatures does not conform to state law.

Others seem to feel that this is an immaterial point, in other words a "quibble."

This means, however, that the selectmen have to face up to the fact that there are 250 people willing to sign for the bylaws. They must now exercise their power and judgement, for future actions.

It is within their power to include the wetlands article in the warrant for the special town meeting, because there still is enough time. If the report of the town counsel is favorable this will probably happen.

If they do not include the article, as well they may not, then they have to face up to 250 signatures, on a form that may or may not be legal, but of which there is not doubt as to intent. If Bob Cain should get a favorable report, from his "outside review" this too could influence the selectmen.

To say that the selectmen are on the spot may not be fair, but they have a problem that must be solved. What will they do?

Avco eyes 8-story building

Avco Corporation may possibly construct an eight story office building on its property at 201 Lowell St., Wilmington.

The company has filed for an appeal to the Wilmington Board of Appeals, asking for a variance in the zoning bylaw which would allow the construction of the building.

The building would be in an area near the back parking lot. The possibility of building is being investigated in the event that the firm lands additional contracts. A spokesman for the firm said that the chances were only 50-50 at this point that they would proceed.

The proposed height for the building will be approximately 135 feet. The Wilmington zoning bylaw allows a two-story or 30 foot building in an industrial district, which is the zoning of the Avco property. A three-story building up to 40 feet is allowed in a general business district.

Wilmington's tallest building to date is a four story building completed by Compugraphic Corporation last year on Ballardvale Street.

The Board of Appeals hearing is scheduled for Sept. 8.

Dianne Chevalier weds Mark Smolinsky

Dianne I. Chevalier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Chevalier of Wildwood Road, Tewksbury became the bride of Mark E. Smolinsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Smolinsky of Chandler Street on May 9, at St. William's Church.

Michelle Chevalier served as maid of honor while the bride's attendants included Gail and Ruthann Smolinsky, Mary Hayes and Nancy Stronach.

John Smolinsky acted as best man while ushering duties were in charge of Michael Smolinsky, Kevin Doherty, Richard Sullivan and James Stronach.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Pelham Inn, N.H.

The new Mrs. Smolinsky is a graduate of Tewksbury Memorial High School and is currently completing her degree at the University of Lowell. She is employed in the purchasing department of Hycor, Inc. of Woburn.

Her husband is also a graduate of Tewksbury High School attending the University of Lowell and is employed as leadman in the stockroom of Sweetheart Plastics.

Following a wedding trip to Europe, the couple is living in Andover.

Federal Hill intersection improved

The highway department of Wilmington has come up with a possible solution to the Federal Hill accidents. The solution is yellow paint along the curb and top two inches of the sidewalk extending from 257 to 275 Middlesex Avenue and signs with eight or 10 small reflectors which will be installed later this week. However, the yellow paint is being installed now and is expected to be finished Wednesday.

A town spokesman said the yellow paint and reflectors will

Farewell reception for Mader family

Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Mader and their son Eric, of Drury Lane, Wilmington, will be the guests of honor at a farewell reception following Sunday's 10:30 a.m. worship service at the Messiah Lutheran Church, Chestnut and Lowell streets, Lynnfield.

Mr. Mader has served as president of the congregation since January and prior to that acted as director of stewardship. His wife, Sylvia served as a Vacation Bible School teacher and a member of the choir. Eric was a member of the Confirmation class.

The Rev. Fred Chapman of Boston will be guest preacher at the 10:30 a.m. worship service and will be in charge of the Weekender's Service on the previous Thursday.

help tired people who aren't aware of the curve, but it will not help people who are not aware of the curve and are under the influence of alcohol.

Federal Hill residents didn't agree that the paint and reflectors would do any good, but another town spokesman said anything may help in stopping the accidents on Federal Hill. Susan Carlson a Federal Hill resident said, "It's excellent that the town is aware of the situation and is doing something about the problem." She went on to say "It's great for the many kids in the neighborhood and the mothers of the five babies that are expected this fall." Michael and Donna Toto said, "We are glad and happy to see that something is being done about the curve."

Now the only thing to do is wait and see whether the signs and paint do any good.

Unfailing Prayer to ST. ANTHONY

"Blessed be God in His Angels and in His Saints"

HOLY St. Anthony, gentlest of Saints, your love for God and Charity for His creatures, made you worthy, when on earth, to possess miraculous powers. Miracles waited on your word, which you were ever ready to speak for those in trouble or anxiety. Encouraged by this thought, I implore of you to obtain for me (request). The answer to my prayer may require a miracle, even so, you are the Saint of Miracles. O gentle and loving St. Anthony, whose heart was ever full of human sympathy, whisper my petition into the ears of the Sweet Infant Jesus, who loved to be folded in your arms; and the gratitude of my heart will ever be yours. 13 Paters, Aves and Glorias.

Donna Wallace weds Stephen Bissett

Miss Donna Helen Wallace, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Wallace of 14 Farrwood Dr., Andover, became the bride of Stephen Thomas Bissett on July 17 in the Wilmington United Methodist Church. She wore an antique satin and rose point lace gown with train which was formerly designed for a member of her family, and she carried a bouquet of white glamelias and stephanosis with streamers.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bissett of Powderhouse Circle, Wilmington.

Miss Wallace was given away by her father in a seven o'clock candlelight ceremony performed by the Rev. Richard Evans.

During the ceremony the maid of honor, the bride's sister, Miss

Nancy Wallace, and the best man, Andrew Sambuco of Methuen, lighted candles held by all guests attending, in a symbolic sharing of the light and warmth of the love of the bride and groom.

The bridesmaids were Laurie Beth Lewis of Andover and Ann Brahany of Nashua, N.H. The junior bridesmaid was Jennifer Bissett of Wilmington, sister of the groom. They wore peach and lavender Guinnee Sax dresses and carried baskets of peach glamelias, purple statice, daisies, and babies breath.

The ushers were Christian Rieseberg of Marlowe, N.H. and Mark Easton of Andover.

A reception at the Lanam Club in Andover followed the ceremony.

The couple will live in Andover.

Reading director's position approved

Among the action taken by the Wilmington School Committee at its meeting on August 12 was a three-to-two vote to reinstate the position of reading director for the 1981-1982 school year.

Dr. Sager told the committee that in order to receive Title I funding additional reviews must take place. She added that this is very time consuming and should be handled by a person who already has a good deal of knowledge as to how the system is run. She went on to say that a job was started by the reading director during the last school year and still has not been completed. Until this work is done, Wilmington will be ineligible for funds under Title I, she explained. Some of the tasks to be accomplished by the reading director, according to Sager, include the selection of target areas for services under Title I and the revamping of the placement of reading staff due to personnel changes mandated by Proposition 2½.

In response to a question from Lester White as to how this person would be paid, Sager explained that the appointment of a reading director would not necessarily mean that they would be adding another full time person. She said that included in the Title I funds is a $2000 stipend to go to the person who handles this work. The reading director is a teacher, she continued, who will instruct at least two of the five reading periods. This may involve the creation of another part time person for the remaining three periods, she added.

An appalled Bridget Zukas asked how they could even consider running the school system without a director of reading. The reply came from White who simply said, "Our acting superintendent is the reading director." This statement prompted Zukas to ask "How can one person fulfill all those roles?" Prior to the vote, Sager was acting superintendent, assistant superintendent, and reading director.

White said that he is concerned about how they are going to handle this situation. He said that the committee told the town at town meeting that they reduced the cost of the central office by combining the job of assistant superintendent and reading director. "Now we're saying we want to undo all that," he said as he urged the board to be very careful.

Sager explained that when the town hears that the acting superintendent is also the assistant superintendent, reading director and Title I director, they won't argue that the schools are saving money.

She stressed again that they are not going to get the Title I money approved unless they begin doing quite a bit of work right away. She added that if that money is lost it means that the school system loses three and a half teachers under Title I.

Demos said that one person should be director of English and reading. Those are not separate entities, he explained, but basic communication skills that should be handled together. He added that there is an awful lot of administrative waste in the system.

When the vote was taken, White and Demos were the only negative votes, with Brooks, McMenimen, and Zukas casting affirmative votes. Fenton was not present at the meeting.

The committee voted unanimously to elect Robert Young and Kathleen Egan to fill two vacancies in the foreign language department. The positions were available due to one leave of absence and one unaccepted contract. "I guess if there's any advantages to 2½ it's that you can get experienced teachers," McMenimen commented.

The board authorized Dr. Sager to sign a contract in its behalf to renew the smoking prevention program that began last year. This is a project funded solely by grants which trains people to help themselves in resisting the idea of smoking. Surveys are conducted to check the attitudes of kids in the program, and all results will be forwarded to the state department.

Dr. Sager also told the committee that the Mass. State Department Division of Occupational Education grant was awarded to the schools for the purchase of micro-computers. She said that this is one of the few areas where grants are still available, but noted that the funds had been reduced by at least 14 percent as compared to the previous year.

This show will be held Sunday, Aug. 23 at the Universal Sports Arena, Conant Road, Winchester at 2 p.m. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Farkas.

Drytek ships first unit

by Debbi Michals

It seems like before they could "Make it in Massachusetts," someone had to develop it in Wilmington. Almost anything ranging from the typesetting industry to Avco's development of heat shields for the space program back in the late 50's and early 60's has been able to find lasting success from ventures that began in Wilmington. Now entering the scene is a new company called Drytek that may very well revolutionize the production of semiconductors for computers.

Drytek was founded approximately one year ago by two men, Joe Maher and Art Zafiropoulos, who after 11 years experience in the industry, knew there had to be a more efficient way to make semiconductors. It was at this point that they came to Wilmington and began the research and development of a new system of using popular techniques to insure maximum safety and output.

The conventional method of manufacturing semiconductors is through the use of wet chemistry, Maher explained. But, he added, over the years this process which uses acids has been discovered to be both costly and environmentally unsafe. These acids are expensive to buy, Maher said, and because of their dangerous nature, are difficult to dispose of. Recently, he went on, more and more semiconductor manufacturers have switched to the safer method of dry chemistry in the cleaning and removal process. Dry chemistry uses gases such as oxygen and freon which are non-flammable, non-toxic and non-corrosive to the environment, he continued. Drytek takes this process one step further by finding a way to employ the dry chemistry method to obtain maximum levels of safety and output, he concluded.

What makes their system so unique is that the size of their unit is relatively small compared to other systems on the market, yet it can produce twice as many parts in the same amount of time as their nearest competitor. The small size is extremely beneficial, Maher explained, because the cost of a clean room area to put it in can be very expensive, ranging from $200 to $2000 per square foot. With the Drytek unit, the price of a clean room area is only $800 per square foot, he added. The reason a clean room area is so costly is that the room must be kept so clean that no particles larger than one forty millionth of an inch can be found in the air at any time, he went on. "The dirtiest thing in the room is the people," Maher said.

Their first unit, which is competitively priced, was shipped to IBM last week, putting Drytek and Wilmington on the map in the semiconductor industry.

Effects of interest rates on business

by Debbi Michals

Everyone, whether they are from a big city or a small town, whether they are an executive of a major corporation or a consumer trying to make ends meet, is effected by the various problems in today's economy. One such problem that has hurt many individuals and businesses alike is the issue of extremely high interest rates.

Recently Compugraphic Corporation of Wilmington laid off 250 employees, citing the decreasing demand for their products due to high interest rates as one of the main reasons. On a somewhat smaller scale, realtors and new car dealers have also suffered due to the interest rates.

With interest rates for mortgages averaging between 17½ and 18½ percent with a 20 percent down payment, realtors have to come up with new selling techniques, as well as an expanded clientele to stay in business. Anne Mahoney of Anne Mahoney Realty said that although her selling strategy has not changed over the last five years or so, her advertising has to reach a wider audience in order for her to maintain her current rate of sales.

Other realtors like Doris Reitchel of A & M Fenton Realty said that today's buyers are much better educated than the buyers of five years ago. Mike Nash of Nash Realty, which has recently converted from a residential to a commercial real estate agency, said that in selling a home today a dealer must be more creative than in the past. He added that four years ago a buyer's first priority was style, size, and location of the home, whereas "now it's financing."

Mahoney explained that over the past few years the trend has shifted from a seller's to a buyer's market. This means, she went on, that more often than not, the buyer calls the shots. There aren't as many buyers out there nowadays, she said, and the ones who are out there are serious and have managed to come up with the money. The sellers, on the other hand, usually want to get rid of their property, and are often willing to settle for a price that is lower than they would have expected to get in an ordinary market, she added. And the buyers know this, she explained, so they dicker as far as prices are concerned. "The one who has more clout is the one who gets the prize," she continued. This whole trend has occurred because of the high interest rates, according to Mahoney. These rates make mortgages less desirable and more difficult to come by.

Even once a couple has attained a down payment, and perhaps even a mortgage, buying a home is particularly difficult. All three realtors agree that most of the people looking for a home today are first-time buyers in their late twenties and early thirties. They are usually childless, with both the husband and the wife holding full-time jobs. The income between them is estimated at between $30,000 and $35,000 and the medium home in Wilmington costs approximately $70,000. What happens, Reitchel explained, is that they get a down payment together and have an idea of the type of home they want to buy. When they actually go out shopping for a home, they realize that because of the interest rates they can't afford the home they had in mind, he continued.

At this point they either go back and continue to save or settle for a starter home with the intention of moving up the ladder at a later date, Reitchel said. In this way, according to Reitchel, young people have become very discouraged about buying real estate.

Another interest-related problem that realtors have to face is the fact that more and more home owners don't want to sell their property, said Nash. Most of them, he explained, aren't willing to give up their mortgages of eight or nine percent to take on a new one at over 17 percent.

The biggest problem that the current interest rate poses is financing. "The cost of money is so high," explained Diane Bogart of the Reading Savings Bank, "that people can't have as much available to them." People who want the money badly enough can find a way to get it, however, with all the new mortgage companies that are springing up. "The market itself tells the story," said Susan Conroy, assistant manager of the Reading Savings Bank. "A lot of people will go to a mortgage company if the interest rate is lower," she explained. She said that most mortgage companies guarantee a low interest rate for five years, after which time they sell the mortgage to a bank, and the home owner assumes the bank's rate of interest. If it means saving money for those initial five years, people are willing to do it, she added.

How do Realtors in today's market get shoppers interested in buying a home? Mahoney said she simply lets them know that even with the high interest rate, now is the best time to buy a home. She said that the interest rate entitles the buyer to higher tax deductions than a lower rate would, but the percentage of increase of the property alone is enough to entice most shoppers to buy, she added.

According to Mahoney, Nash, and Reitchel, the increase in property value still exceeds the increase in the inflation rate.

Reitchel's strategy includes telling the shopper that the average person owns three homes in a lifetime, and that as a house goes up in value, they can continually move up the ladder.

Nash, on the other hand, said he never discusses interest rates when trying to sell a home. He said that he sits down with the buyers and together they talk only about what they can afford. Of course, he added, interest rates are figured indirectly. "If approached from that angle, you have a better chance of making the sale," he explained. Incidentally, Nash said that he shows one home approximately seven or eight times before it is sold, as compared to the 20 or 25 times of four years ago. This again, is a result of the limited availability of financing which has reduced the total number of buyers.

Realtors aren't the only ones who have to contend with the problems of high interest rates. New car dealers have their share of trouble trying to sell their items in today's market. Fred Cain of Fred F. Cain Inc., said that interest rates are more or less scaring people away. He said that most people think that the prime rate is what they will have to pay to finance a new car, when the actual rate is much less. For him to keep a new car on the lot, he has to pay the bank that financed that car for him 22 percent interest. The person who buys that car from Cain pays only 16.8 percent and the prime rate is 20.5 percent. According to Cain, the reason for this is that banks lend to individuals under the prime rate. "So he added, they do their best to move a car out of the lot as quickly as possible. If a car remains on the lot for a period of months, he could end up paying $400 in interest on it, and if the total mark-up of the vehicle is only $380, he loses money."

Oftentimes, Cain said, he ends up selling a car at cost just to move it off the lot. Currently Chrysler is offering a rebate to help take the heat off dealers and to speed up the sale of cars, he said.

Of course things have changed in terms of automobile sales and financing over the years, Cain said. Forty-five years ago he used to pay three percent interest to keep a car on the lot and sell it at a loan of five percent interest. In those days profits were greater, he explained, because he could sell a car for less. "We used to sell a car for $50 and be tickled pink," he said.

To sell a car today, Cain said, he has to basically sell the technology and economy of the vehicle. In order to get people to let go of their old cars, he has to persuade them that the savings in gas alone is worth the investment.

In terms of interest rates, Cain said the economy is at a standstill. "Anybody considering expanding or enlarging would not do it at these present rates," he added.

The best investment today, according to Mahoney, Nash, and Reitchel is still real estate, but a banker will insist that money market certificates are the best way to go. June McAdams of Baybank-Middlesex said that with this type of account, a person deposits a minimum of $500 for two and a half to four years. He earns 15 percent interest, but he can not touch the money for the duration of the certificate, or else he will be penalized three months interest. "That's where the money is," she added.

While I am driving

Well, my needle is on E,
It seems to me
That I put thirty bucks in Just the other day
My old Caddy is in style,
And rated gallons to the mile,
As my speed exceeds the limit
Set for this freeway.
Well, every week it's a challenge
To burn less than 80 gallons
With an ocean liner luxury car.
And though I got my check today,
It's safe to say my whole week's pay
Is in the tank,
And not the bank.
Imports, imports of all sorts and reports say
That we may lose more industries
To overseas car companies,
Owned by efficient Japanese
Who like to squeeze pennies
From Western World economies
Well, I drove for some years,
When gas was scarce
In a single seater, fuel efficient, economy car
The mileage was fantastic,
But the car was made of plastic,
And one hot day, melted away on my driveway.
Well, the inflation situation,
Just gives me constipation,
And the nation expects us to pay the bill
And every company is free,
To raise the fee,
To cover oil lost at sea in spills,
From off shore drills.
Being number one was fun,
But now it seems
Our turn is done,
Do we fight or run?
While over here we fear,
Our industry slips to the rear,
Someday, maybe, Detroit will disappear.
While I'm driving,
OPEC is smiling,
Detroit is restyling,
Prices are rising,
It's not surprising,
To hear criticizing,
From those,
Who oppose,
The system,
They hate it,
But God knows they create it.
Well the dollar,
Sure is smaller,
But I'm thankful,
I got my tank full,
And have a dollar still,
To kill; from my pay.
I watch Ricardo Montalban, when he's on,
But I can't tell whether,
He's selling the car
Or just the leather.
Well, this gas,
May be my last,
For how many drops of oil,
Can there be in the earth's soil...
The Mustang that you drive today,
Tomorrow you'll be feeding hay.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

According to a report in the Town Crier (August 12, 1981) Sunday as a "Special" day has come under fire again by one of our selectmen and others.

Thank you Selectmen DePasquale and Cairra for your comments that there are plenty of options, with all the days of the week, to run Casino Nights.

May I take this opportunity to enlighten some regarding the embarrassing and ignorant remark attributed to this sone Selectman, which was "We don't take off on Saturday for the Jewish thing - we are all fine Catholics..."

Jews celebrate the Sabbath (which is a day not a thing) starting at sundown Friday through sundown Saturday. This is not just "their thing" either, but as God instructed, and encouraged, beginning with the book of Genesis "on the Seventh Day God rested." If God thought it was a good idea it must have some merit.

Sunday is the day the Christian Church established as the Sabbath because of the resurrection of Jesus Christ, which occurred on the first day of the week (Sunday). New Testament Christian Churches still recognize this as a sacred day and have established this teaching around the world.

Jesus said "The Son of man is Lord of the Sabbath Day (Matthew 12 vs. 8) further vs. 12 tells us it is allowed to do good on the Sabbath i.e. caring for the sick, feeding the hungry, but primarily a day of rest and reflection to be enjoyed with family.

I would like to be counted as thinking that is a logical explanation for Sunday being a "Special" day. By the way, not only logical, but according to the scripture.

Yes, we all have a free will and if you choose to run crap games on Sunday, don't expect these endeavors to receive God's blessing. People have always chosen to go against the teachings of God and the results have always been the same.

As a closing note the Shriner's Burn Institute is supported by many endeavors of imaginative men who create Circus's Rodeo's, Parades, etc., all family oriented. Their bylaws rule out gambling (Casino style and others), because they believe in the work ethic and giving of themselves with true dedication to a worthy cause.

Let's face it, the Shriners have built a monument to life to be admired and respected with their hospitals for burned and crippled children.

It would certainly be nice to see some of their efforts emulated by the not-for-profit organizations that Mr. Dyas stated were facing hardships.

This Las Vegas Casino Gambling is being promoted in the name of charity primarily by profit-making companies reaping windfall revenues into the thousands of dollars. So, please don't tell me about charity and expect me to be silent when the pollution of the one true day of charity and love is being blasphemed.

It all boils down to a matter of priority, and I pray I am not the only person in Wilmington (as implied at this meeting) to want Sunday to stay a peaceful, joyful, family oriented day, sans' craps.

Most parent volunteers have too little time to spend with their children as it is, it seems to me Sunday night Las Vegas Nights are just another inticement to separate families and God knows the "family" is having a tough enough time.

Please, leave Sunday as it was meant to be.

Shalom,
Anne Linehan

ON HIDING PARTIAL CLASPS

The basic design for the removable partial is a framework of metal with metal clasps that grip the supporting teeth and hold the appliance in the mouth. There is generally acrylic over the ridge areas (the area of missing teeth) to support the replacement teeth.

Most of the esthetic problems with a removable partial have to do with the clasps or hooks that hold it in place. Patients feel that the illusion of naturalness is defeated by the hooks that immediately indicate "removable denture."

The simplest way of overcoming this is to alter the design of the partial. Retention and stability may still be obtained with smaller, thinner clasps. Clasps can be further hidden by placing them as far back on the tooth as possible. This is a very delicate procedure, however, because if the clasps are reduced too much, it loses its function.

A partial that doesn't stay in the mouth is useless, no matter how esthetic it is. A promising new product is a tooth-colored Teflon tube that can be slipped over the clasp to hide it.

Dentistry has come a long way in combining function with pleasing appearance in the area of dentures.

A public service to promote better dental health. From the office of: RANDALL SMITH, D.D.S., 85 Wilmington Road, Burlington, Phone: 272-0540.

Board of Water and Sewer Commissioners

TOWN OF WILMINGTON

ADVERTISEMENT FOR PROPOSALS

Town of Wilmington, Massachusetts. Sealed bids for Remediations to Contract 2 Intercepting Sewer and appurtenant work, for the Town of Wilmington, Massachusetts, acting by its Town Manager, will be received at the Town Hall, Wilmington, Massachusetts, until 11:00 o'clock A.M., prevailing time, on September 9, 1981. All bids received up to this time will forthwith be taken unopened to the Conference Room in the Wilmington Public Library on Middlesex Avenue where they will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The proposed work includes remediations to about 7300 linear feet of existing 24-inch and 30-inch intercepting sewer and all appurtenant work. The Contract Documents, including Specifications and Drawings, may be examined at the office of the Town Clerk, Town Hall, Wilmington, Massachusetts, and at the office of Fay, Spofford and Thorndike, Inc., One Beacon St., Boston, on and after August 20, 1981, every weekday except Saturday between the hours of nine o'clock A.M. and four o'clock P.M., and copies thereof may be obtained at the office of Fay, Spofford and Thorndike, Inc. upon payment of $30.00 for each set, for which a refund will be made if returned to the Engineer in good condition within twenty one days after the opening of bids. Payment for Drawings and Specifications shall be by check made out to Fay, Spofford and Thorndike, Inc. If a Bidder requests Drawings and Specifications to be mailed out to him, an additional check in the amount of $10.00 made out to Fay, Spofford and Thorndike, Inc. shall be included. This is to cover the cost of mailing and handling and will not be refunded.

Prospective Bidders are urged to attend a Pre-Bid Conference at the Conference Room in the Wilmington Public Library on Middlesex Avenue at 2:00 o'clock P.M., on September 2, 1981. Any request for interpretation of plans and specifications should be submitted in writing at the same time.

Each Bid must be accompanied by bid security in the form of certified check, cashier's check, treasurer's check, bid bond or cash in an amount not less than 5 percent of the Estimated Total Contract Price. Attention of Bidders is called particularly to the requirements as to the conditions of employment to be observed and minimum rates to be paid within (30) days (Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays excluded), after the date of opening thereof.

A Performance Bond and Labor and Material Payment Bond, each in an amount equal to 100 percent of the Contract price will be required. The right is reserved to waive any informalities in or to reject any or all bids received and to award the Contract to any of the contractors bidding on the work if, in the Town's opinion, the best interests of the Town thereby will be promoted. ## Chief's injury request on hold

A vote on Tewksbury Police Chief John Sullivan's application for an occupational injury has been put off once again. The board of selectmen yielded to the wishes of Chairman Bill Hallisey at the August 11 meeting when he said two things would have to happen before he could feel ready to vote on the issue. Hallisey said he wants a full board present to take the vote and wants a letter from Sullivan's doctor saying that the heart problem the chief had corrected by surgery was related to his work.

Because of an illness in the immediate family Hallisey was unable to attend the July 21 meeting when the board deadlocked at 2-2 on the issue. To avoid another deadlock Hallisey pushed for the full board to be present before the vote can be taken.

He added that since he is "not a doctor" he would like Sullivan's physician to supply a letter to the board saying whether or not the heart problem the chief suffered was created from the type of work he does. However, Hallisey did indicate that information about Sullivan's past medical history would lead one to believe that the problem was created from the job. He said that Sullivan had heart troubles at work on "more than one occasion." If the doctor's letter says that his problem was created on the job, Hallisey said, then he would "support" the occupational injury.

Selectman Dick Morris didn't agree with any more delays on the issue. He said it has been "dragging on and on." He pointed out that in 1973 Sullivan suffered a heart problem and "that was paid by the town. I don't see how we can go on and on," Morris said.

Hallisey explained he would feel "much more comfortable with a doctor telling me." He also explained that there is a difference between the "heart act" and an "occupational injury."

The heart act dictates that a police officer, if he had no prior history of heart ailments, developed a heart condition while on the force it is "presumed" that the trouble was caused by the job. The presumption could be refuted and proof would have to be shown that the trouble was not "causally related" to the work.

An occupational injury is suffered while in the line of duty. When the issue was first brought before the board on June 16, Town Counsel Charles Zaroulis said that the "heart is not classified as injury...unless there is trauma that caused it."

Hallisey said, "I would vote that John Sullivan is covered under the heart act, but the heart act and an occupational injury are two different things." Hallisey's statements were made after some confusion between the heart act and an occupational injury had cropped up and was reported in the local press.

The heart act is used for retiring officers while an occupational injury is used to retain an officer's sick time after suffering an injury in the line of duty that kept him out of work for some time. Zaroulis said that they are "two distinct things."

The heart act provides that the retiring officer can receive 72 percent of his pay regardless of the time spent on the force if he retires due to a heart condition caused by the job.

Zaroulis said that granting an occupational injury for a heart problem does not guarantee the officer will be automatically given the protection of the heart act. However, it would seem that since an occupational injury for a heart problem was granted, it would be difficult to show proof that the heart problem was not caused from the job.

The motion to seek a letter from the doctor passed with Hallisey, Charles Coldwell and Tom Budrewicz supporting the effort and Dick Morris not voting. Dick Trueba was not present at the August 11 meeting.

O'Donnell fires no-hitter

Nash Realty pitcher Paul O'Donnell faced only 18 batters and hurled a no-hitter, as his club blitzed Bill & Bob's, 14-0 in Wilmington Adult Softball League playoff action Sunday night at Town Park.

Chuck Jacobus and Joe Quinn each slashed two hits for the winners in handing Bill & Bob's pitcher Paul Magee the loss.

In other single elimination playoff action Sunday night, Rocco's tripped D&D Gulf, 10-6; Compugraphic dumped North Wilmington Shell, 8-5; and the Sons of Italy ripped Realty World, 11-5. A summary of Sunday's playoff action:

Rocco's 10-D&D Gulf 6

Snooky Lynch lashed two hits and Gene Baldwin powered a triple, as Bob Aprile pitched the win over Rick Nickerson.

Nickerson helped his cause with a pair of hits for D&D Gulf.

Compugraphic 8-No. Wilmington Shell 5

Rick Koenig and Ed Boyle combined for five hits, as Compugraphic held on for the win despite a five run fourth inning by North Wilmington Shell. Pete Brown, Jim Busby and Jamie Shepard each batted two hits for North Wilmington Shell. Walter Welding pitched the win over Wally Neal.

Sons of Italy 11-Realty World 5

A six run second inning powered the Sons of Italy to this victory, as former Billerica Little League star Bob Daney pitched the win over Realty World's Phil McDonald.

Dale Porter led the way for the winners with a single and a double to drive in three runs, while Chris DiCecca hammered out a single and a triple. Mike Herra kept Realty World in the game with a three run homer, and Jack Paulson chipped in with a single and a triple.

Thurs., August 13

Dunkirk Express 3-McNamara Tire 1

Tom Woods won with a four-hitter to best McNamara Tire tough luck hurler Jim Crowley, who lost while firing a five-hitter.

Steve Woods, Tom Woods and Jim Peterson all ripped triples for the winners, while Bob Frongillo and Jim Crowley batted two hits apiece for McNamara Tire.

No. Wilm. Shell 10-Compugraphic 7

Jim Busby's bases loaded triple snapped a 7-7 tie in the top of the seventh inning and gave pitcher Jim Busby the victory over

Walter Welding. Ray Noel helped the cause with three North Wilmington Shell hits.

Bert Guilmette rapped three hits for Compugraphic, while Rick Koenig smashed a three run homer.

Weds., August 12

Doyle's Hardware 9-Aslanis Fisheries 5

Winning pitcher Kris Hinxman went 3 for 3, with Bob Cheney and Bill Blaisdell banging out two hits apiece. Bruce Butters had two hits for Aslanis Fisheries. John Trickett was the losing pitcher.

Rocco's 13-Sons of Italy 11

Bill Cole drove a homer for the winners and Doug Harrison stuck in two hits, as Ken Sarchione held on to hurl the win over Bob Capozzi. Chris DiCecca had two hits for the Sons of Italy.

Tues., August 11

No. Wilm. Shell 8-Bill & Bob's 6
Ray Noel had three hits, including a homerun, and Eric Sanders and Pete Brown rapped two hits apiece, as Wally Neal pitched the win over Chris Nee. Nee and Bill Waller had two hits apiece for Bill & Bob's.

Sons of Italy 6-D&D Gulf 5

Winning pitcher Mark Reed and Bill Simmons combined for five hits to hand Roy Meyers the loss. Gary Baker (three hits) and Jim Flaherty (two hits) paced the D&D attack.

Mon., August 10

Sons of Italy 12-McNamara Tire 5

Bill Sullivan rammed a single and a homerun, while Bob Capozzi stuck in a single and a double to pace the Sons of Italy to this easy victory. Bill Sinopoli slapped two hits for McNamara Tire. Bob Daney pitched the win over Herb Mason.

Compugraphic 9-Doyle's Hardware 2

Mike Tripodi rammed a single and a homerun to drive in four runs, while Dan Donovan chipped in with a double and a triple. Mark Blaisdell had a pair of hits for Doyle's Hardware. Walter Welding pitched a fine game for Compugraphic.

Major League collision

The playoffs are underway in the Wilmington Softball League, with players from the Sons of Italy and Realty World into some serious business Sunday night at the Town Park. Here, Realty World catcher Dave Orndorff takes the brunt of a rough slide by a Sons of Italy baserunner, and stays on the ground as players from the Sons of Italy bench rush to check his condition. Orndorff bounced back, but his team didn't, dropping an 11-5 decision in single elimination playoff action.

Daney chucks playoff win

Sons of Italy pitcher Bob Daney was the winning hurler in Sunday night's 11-5 playoff romp past Realty World in Wilmington Softball League playoff action. Daney is a former Billerica Little League baseball pitcher and was once the batterymate of Town Crier Sports Editor Rick Cooke. How's that for a slice of local sports trivia?

A burnout for basketball

One of the many racing cars at Saturday's car show for the benefit of the Tewksbury Youth Basketball League staged a water burnout for the fine crowd that kept coming throughout the afternoon. The lucky passenger in this heavy Chevy is Shawn Blades, the son of Youth Basketball League Director Ed Blades. The show raised over $300 for the league, which might have difficulty in locating available gym time next winter.

Fights at Wonderland Ballroom

McNally battles Milan Thursday

Fight promoter Johnny Gagliardi of Medford will present an all-star professional boxing show at the Wonderland Ballroom Thursday evening, August 20. Gagliardi, who is the most active fight promoter in Massachusetts, will feature six slugfests at the popular Revere boxing site.

In the eight round main event, light heavyweight sensation Gentleman Jim McNally, (16-1) of Wilmington will take on world class fighter Jesse Milan of Sonora, Mexico. McNally, who has 10 KO's, is headed for national T.V. exposure, and will be fighting for the title in a couple of years, according to very prominent fight people. Milan will provide the classy boxer-slugger with his toughest competition to date.

The semifinal will be an eight round "war" between light heavyweight Donnell Wigfall of Brockton, who gave Marvin Hagler a real beating several years ago, and Jose Verdejo of Springfield.

There will be two heavyweight bouts, both six rounders, with popular Curtis Whitener of Lynn (the man who fought world champion Larry Holmes) taking on Jimmy Finn of Holyoke, and Young Charles Cox (the Joe Frazier of Boston) going against Bahamian heavyweight champ Andy Russell, who is fighting out of Portland, Maine.

In a six round welterweight bout that promises plenty of action, Everett's Tom Jancy will face hard punching Angel Ortiz of Springfield.

The first bout of the night will be a rematch of last month's "fight of the century" in Springfield between Lynn welterweight Glenn Burnett, a budding star, and Bob DiZoglio of Lawrence, who is also a promising young battler. Burnett won a close decision in the first fight, but DiZoglio promises to correct the "judges' mistake." This bout could steal the entire show, according to Gagliardi.

Ticket prices are $10, with seating on a first come, first served basis. The first bout is at 8 p.m., but the bar will open at 7.

Beach closes

The public beach at Silver Lake will close Sunday, August 23. Lifeguard services will not be available after that date.

This earlier than usual closing of the beach is a direct result of Prop 2½.

A baseball fanatic from Rome

Italy's Corsetti a hit in Wilmington

by Debbi Michals
What happens to a baseball fanatic from Rome who comes to America to spend the summer with relatives? Well, if he's Diego Corsetti, he plays baseball for the Northeast League's Wilmington Recreation baseball team.

Corsetti arrived in this country in June at the invitation of his uncle, Edmond Corsetti of North Woburn. After a trip to Paris last summer, where he met many young people, especially girls, who spoke English, Diego decided he wanted to come to America to learn to speak our language.

Since his arrival, he has stayed with various family members, and eventually ended up in the home of a cousin Donna and her husband, Wilmington High School Athletic Director Jim Gillis. Since the name Gillis is synonymous with athletics in Wilmington, Diego and his new "family" took a liking to each other instantly.

Corsetti became involved in the Wilmington Rec League with the help of both Gillis and the team's coach, Dick Scanlon. Diego's first love is baseball, said Gillis, so he asked Scanlon to let him practice with the team. Shortly thereafter, he actually played with the team in Sunday non-league games and did extremely well, Gillis added.

Diego is a versatile athlete, with four years of baseball experience behind him. At one time or another he has played volleyball, soccer and tennis, although currently he is only a member of a baseball team in Rome. His love for baseball is so great, he said, that he'd like to play it every day.

According to Gillis, his Italian guest was very much impressed with Wilmington High School. In Italy, Corsetti explained, the schools consist only of a building for studying. There are no playing fields, and there is no such thing as interscholastic sports competition. The only competitive teams are formed by clubs, he explained.

In terms of physical education, Italian students have two hours per week of volleyball and gymnastics in a school gymnasium. No other games are played within the school system.

When comparing Italian sports in with American sports, Corsetti said that all the teams are better here. In Italy there are a few good teams, he added, but there are also a great many bad clubs. He also said players don't make as much in the Major Leagues in Italy as they do in the United States. Some U.S. college players come to Italy to play in their major leagues for a year or so.

Corsetti was very disappointed with professional baseball in America when he first arrived, because a week after he got here, the baseball strike began. He said his Uncle Sonny had already bought tickets for a game that was scheduled to be played shortly after the strike began. He was really looking forward to the game, but because of the strike he had to wait quite a while to get his first taste of American baseball. He eventually went to a game once the season reopened, he said, and was disappointed again, since the Red Sox lost.

Although he noted that many things about the two countries are alike, he said that students in Italian schools don't have lockers. He also said that a person must be 18 years old to get a driver's license in Italy. On August 20, an almost 17-year-old Diego Corsetti will take an exam for an American driver's learner's permit, so his relatives here can teach him to drive. Also, most kids don't start to work until they are 18 in Italy, he added, which probably doesn't make driving necessary before the age of 18.

Of the many sites he's seen, Diego said he enjoyed Hampton Beach the most. "There's a lot to do there," he said, and he met quite a few people at the beach. He enjoys meeting people more than anything else, he explained. He has been all over Boston, to Fenway Park and will be visiting New York some time before he returns to Italy in late September. He also said that he likes Wilmington a lot.

Gillis mentioned that when Diego went to Hampton Beach with his Uncle Charlie, he planned to wear the usual suit that one would wear on an Italian beach - a small string bikini, but his rather surprised uncle told him that he was going to wear loose-fitting shorts like American men wear.

September 25, Corsetti will be returning to Italy, where he plans to finish his high school education and go on to college. "Students attend high school for five years in Italy," he explained.

Once he finishes high school, Diego hopes to go on to college and study architecture. After he has completed his schooling, he said, he may come back to America to build a skyscraper. "Well," smiled Gillis, "he can't do much to improve on the Colosseum."

North Shore hockey tryouts

The North Shore Raiders Hockey Club will hold tryouts at Town Line Twin Rinks, Route 114, Danvers, for the 1981-82 hockey season.

The Double A Squirt, Pee wee and Bantam teams are members of the Metropolitan Boston Hockey League.

Tryouts are as follows:

Even on a beautiful summer day, Diego Corsetti was inside, working on the Wilmington High School nautilus equipment. Diego's work has paid athletic dividends, as the resident of Rome, Italy is a fine all-around athlete.

First scrimmage this Saturday

Tewksbury Pop Warner opens with Wakefield

The 1981 football season will get underway for the Tewksbury Pop Warner A and B teams Sunday, September 6, as they host the Wakefield Indians at the Ballou-DelRossi Field on Livingston Street.

Wakefield, out of the Middlesex League, is a new opponent for the Redmen, replacing Saugus on the schedule. Tewksbury will now be playing three Middlesex League powers, Wakefield, Woburn and Burlington, along with their Merrimack Valley schedule.

The Redmen will have their first scrimmage this Saturday morning, August 22 at 10:00 against Malden at Hazel Field on Livingston Street. The 1981 Tewksbury Pop Warner traveling ## schedule:

September

Sixth, Wakefield at Tewksbury; 13 Tewksbury at Methuen; 20 Billerica at Tewksbury; 27 Sudbury at Tewksbury.

October

Fourth Dracut at Tewksbury; 11 Tewksbury at Lawrence; 18 Chelmsford at Tewksbury; 25 Tewksbury at Wilmington.

November

First, Woburn at Tewksbury; 8 Tewksbury at Burlington; 15 Carnation Bowl.

Tewksbury will host the Carnation Bowl this year against teams from out-of-state. The Tewksbury B team is the defending Merrimack Valley champ in that division of play.

Pop Warner registration closes August 24

The Tewksbury Recreation Department will close registration for Pop Warner on Monday evening, August 24, at Hazel Field on Livingston Street at 7:00. The cut-off date is necessary to expedite the forming of teams for the opening day Saturday, September 5 at the Ballou-DelRossi Field.

The following format is used in determining a boy's level of play: Age nine-in-town league; age 10-in-town league; age 11-in-town league; age 12 and over 95 pounds-B team; under 95 pounds-in-town league; age 13, over 95 pounds-A team; age 14, under 110 pounds-A team if born between January 1, 1967 to July 31, 1967, under 95 pounds, B team if born Jan. 1, 1968 to July 31, 1968.

Age is determined using August 1 as a cut-off. Whatever a boy's age is on August 1, that is his playing age. Boys returning from vacation who have already registered should check in at the Hazel Field refreshment stand at 6 p.m. for assignment to a team.

Boys intending to play may register Monday through Friday this week at 6 p.m. at the Hazel Field refreshment stand on Livingston Street. All candidates must be accompanied by a parent or guardian and take a copy of their birth certificate as proof of age.

The In-Town League will again use its mandatory playing rule with all players playing at least one full period. Nine and 10-year-olds will play against each other during the second period of each game. All others will play during the other three quarters.

Battle lines drawn

The Wilmington Pop Warner football program is in full swing, with players working out at the Wilmington High School field throughout the week. Top to bottom: Coach Larry McGrath instructs his linemen prior to a drill; Charger linemen square off in a blocking drill; and two players knock heads as their coaches look on during Monday night's practice.

Tewksbury Youth Baseball

Angels Major champs

Saturday, August 15, the Angels clinched the Tewksbury American Major League championship with two victories over the White Sox.

The first game saw a 6-5 Angel victory in the completion of an earlier game. Larry Lumia singled in Charlie Gath with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning. Jim Maniscalco struck out the side in the top of the ninth to get the win.

In the second game, the Angels received three hit, 13 strikeouts pitching from Jim Maniscalco and Charlie Gath in a 15-3 victory. Charlie Gath also had four hits, including a homerun and four RBI's.

Jim Maniscalco had two hits and three RBI's. John Miller had two hits. Also getting hits were Chris LeBlanc and Gerry Delaney. Gary Powrs contributed two RBI's. Playing well defensively were Ken LeBlanc, John Miller, Larry Lumia, Bob Perry and David Sarsfield.

August 23 at the East Street Little League Field, the Angels will meet the National League champion Red Sox for the Tewksbury Major League championship.

Industrial Softball Tourney

An Industrial Softball Tournament for all Wilmington industries and their permanent active employees is slated for the weekend of August 27, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The simple rules are modified pitch, no bunting or stealing in single elimination; with trophies awarded to the winner and runner-up.

There is a fee of $35.00 per team at sign-ups any night at Town Park with Jack Cushing.

A strong third

Wilmington's Chris D'Antonio placed a strong third in the broad jump during the K of C Olympics Friday.

Longshots clinch title

The Longshots are the champions of the Wilmington Recreation Intramural Softball League after last week's exciting victory over the Better Halves in the best two out of three playoff series.

The Longshots took game one, 10-8, and the final game of the series, 8-7 after losing the second tussle, 12-9. A summary of the championship series:

Championship game

Longshots 8-Better Halves 7

Four runs in the first and seventh innings gave the Longshots the title, with Karen Rowe pitching the win over Cheryl Olson. Sandy Crowley led the Longshots attack, while Patty Robson and Sheri Sencabaugh swung the big sticks for the Better Halves.

Better Halves 12-Longshots 9

Kathy Robinson belted two hits for the winners, while Janet Reed's two run single tied the game for the Longshots in the bottom of the fourth inning. Cheryl Olson pitched the win over Karen Rowe.

Longshots 10-Better Halves 8

Karen Rowe led the way for the winners with three hits, and she had help from Cindy Cornish and Sandy Craig with two hits apiece. Lynne Flaherty knocked in two runs for the Better Halves. Ace Karen Rowe chalked up the pitching victory over Cheryl Olson.

Rolled over

David LaLiberte of Wilmington was arrested after his Porsche rolled over on Lowell Street Sunday evening. Details in police log.

Wilmington police news

Among other things, 25 disturbances kept Wilmington police officers on the run during the week ending August 18. Other incidents investigated by local officers were eight accidents, four fires, 15 larcenies, 13 reports of suspicious activity and six trespassing complaints.

During the same seven day period, officers made three arrests, and four protective custody detentions; went to the assistance of other departments on five occasions; rendered medical assistance five times; investigated 19 alarms and three assault and battery cases.

Three breaks were investigated; three domestic problems were quieted; three liquor related incidents were checked out; two persons were reported missing; one stolen vehicle was recovered; two threat complaints were logged along with 11 traffic complaints and 18 cases of vandalism were investigated.

Arrests

At approximately 2 a.m. Saturday, Sgt. Rooney, assisted by Officers Jepson, Neville, Ballou and Redding arrested Robert Farnkoff and John Landry, both of Wilmington on default warrants and turned them over to the North Reading Police Department.

Sunday evening Officer David McCue arrested David LaLiberte of Harold Avenue, Wilmington following investigation of an accident on Lowell Street at Malloy Road.

The accident, in which LaLiberte's Porsche rolled over, sent his passenger, Wendy Saunders of Fairmeadow Road to the Regional Health Center for treatment.

LaLiberte was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol and operating so as to endanger.

Accident

Monday evening Officer Spencer investigated a two car accident on Route 125 at Andover Street.

One vehicle was operated by Cerie A. Delgado of Moore Street, Winthrop and the other by Frank Fusco of Middlesex Avenue, Wilmington. No injuries were reported.

Armed robbery conviction

In a recent decision from Cambridge Superior Court, Kevin Downey of Devens Street, Charlestown was convicted of the armed robbery of the Wilmington B.P. gas station. The robbery took place on January 6.

Downey received a sentence of 10 years to be served after the completion of a current sentence. Witnesses for the prosecution were Officers Spencer and McKenna, Sgt. Shepard, and Insp. Ballou, along with the victim of the robbery.

Finance Committee (Continued from Page 1)

areas of photography and finger printing, he suggested, or be left to handle the increase in lighting costs from Reading Light. He also mentioned that although recently there has not been a problem in terms of funds for fire department employees vacations or fill-ins, it would certainly be worthwhile to have the money in the reserve fund just in case a problem arises.

He recommended that the $539,251 be broken down into two portions, one made up of $230,000 for salary adjustments and additional costs incurred by the town regarding its employees. The remaining $309,000, he said, he'd like to see go to the school department for the expense of reopening the Swain School.

In answer to a question as to why the figure for the town employees' raises is $230,000 as opposed to the $175,000 that was mentioned previously, Stappczynski said that the original figure was inaccurate and was based on a six percent increase and not the eight percent increase that they will actually be getting. Jim Carroll asked why the bill for street lights was so high for the month of July, which he considers to be a very bright month. Stappczynski said that he didn't have the answers to that question which is why the bill is going to be audited. Several fincom members also noted seeing street lights on during daytime hours.

Anita Backman asked school committee chairman John Brooks to supply the answers to a few questions before all three boards meet together to try to come up with one unified recommendation. She wants to know what the additional busing costs will be, why the Swain School was chosen over other schools, and the exact number of additional personnel that will be required to run the Swain aside from teachers.

The committee also discussed a letter from Roy McClanahan regarding fuel hikes for the new fiscal year. In the correspondence as well as in person, McClanahan explained that a fuel adviser previously told him to expect at least a 50 percent increase over the fiscal 81 budget figures. Recently a supplier explained that due to a shift in the world petroleum situation and the glut that resulted, he should anticipate a 10-20 percent increase over the budgeted figures. He suggested that the fuel appropriation be reduced by $117,000, and said that based on these figures, even with the reduction there will be a sufficient cushion in the amount appropriated by town meeting to cover a moderate price hike above the 10-20 percent limit.

The fincom also set September 2 as the date for the public hearing, and has tentatively planned to meet on August 25 to discuss the school committee proposals regarding the appropriation of the additional money.

Wilmington senior topics

Picnic

The arts and crafts picnic, held on the grounds of the Tewksbury-Wilmington Elks August 12 was a tremendous success. It was an all-day affair, starting at 10 a.m. and ending at 4 p.m. Food was served at intervals throughout the day and many of the seniors played cards, sang, danced and socialized.

The money realized from arts and crafts fairs, pays for this annual event, enjoyed by so many seniors. A grateful thank you was extended to the committee and the women who worked so hard every Tuesday and Thursday morning throughout the year. If more of the seniors would contribute their talents and time, the work would be a little lighter all around. The committee would like to see more of the men getting involved. Last year a gentleman was a member of the committee and he had a marvelous talent for making floral decorations. Any talent would be most definitely welcomed by the committee.

Nurse at the center
Abbie Radley, the town nurse will be at the Drop-in Center Thursday afternoon from one o'clock to take blood pressures and give diabetes tests to any town resident 60 years of age or over. Diabetes is a disease that creeps up without warning. All seniors over the age of 60 should have this test. If it is detected it can be controlled before it becomes a serious health problem.

Whist party August 24

The arts and crafts second whist party of August will be held at the Center Monday, August 24 starting at 1 p.m. The whist parties are not run to make money. They are merely social affairs with many excellent prizes purchased by the committee, Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs making the games more interesting.

Summer lunch ending

This is the last week of the summer lunch program held at the Shawheen School. The fall program will begin with the opening of school. Information will be in this column.

Overnight trips

The Council on Aging does not book overnight trips for Wilmington seniors. The Council does have available, however brochures on such trips. Frances Callandrello is booking a trip to the Concord Hotel, Kianesha Lake, New York. It is for four days and three nights, October 13-16. Any senior interested should call Frances at 658-8805.

Traffic tie-up

A flatbed trailer belonging to Harnum Riggers of Woburn Street tipped Friday morning, as it was making the sharp turn from Eames Street onto Woburn Street. Four large cooling units fell to the street, blocking traffic to the industrial area. A lift truck was brought from Harnum's yard, and the units were hoisted onto trucks and removed.

Roving with Dan Ferullo

Separate beds called for

A friend of ours told us this story over lunch the other day:

I could never understand why married people in old movies always slept in separate beds. I chalked it up to the Catholic church frowning upon any sexual innuendo, no matter how slight. But that wasn't the case at all. I found out the real reason after I got married (actually the answer came to me several years after I got married). Of course, these are personal reasons, but after three years of analysis, I know now that they occur to a lot of other married people.

The first reason, I discovered — and probably one of the best reasons for going back to separate beds, is because I tend to talk in my sleep. I don't consciously feel an inordinate amount of guilt during the hours I'm awake at the present, so I keep telling my wife she's imagining that I talk in my sleep. My analyst says you don't always have to feel guilty to talk in your sleep. You just have to constantly be around someone who never lets you get a word in edgewise. You end up doing all your talking in your sleep. That's got to be my problem, if indeed I talk in my sleep. My wife insists I do, but she also swears up and down that she gives me every opportunity in the world to get my views into our daytime conversations. She just wants to have the final word. Getting back to my alleged sleep talking, she says she's going to tape record my conversations with myself some night. To be honest, I do have the tendency to mentally draft stories in my head at night, so it's possible that that's what she hears me discussing with myself. I hope I have enough sense in my sleep to save the love scenes to the daytime.

The next good reason for having twin beds is suddenly waking up in the middle of the night and jumping up in the bed. That can be particularly rough on a spouse with a bad heart. I don't think I have a problem with nightmares, but I have to admit that on more than one occasion I've snapped out of a light sleep (I seldom sleep deeply) and nearly scared the hell out of my poor wife. She keeps telling me I'm going to cause her death yet.

The worst jumping-up-in-bed incident took place just a few weeks ago. I popped up, in a hot sweat, and for some unknown reason, I hopped right over my wife and landed on the floor on her side of the bed! I didn't come all the way out of my sleep, so I can't recall exactly what I did, felt or said once I found myself in that precarious position, but I do remember that I thought there was a stranger in the house (that thought came to mind after I was out of bed; goodness knows what actually caused me to jump in the first place). Of course, there wasn't. I also recall seeing my wife's expression, which was partly illuminated by a street lamp outside our open bedroom window. I damn near scared her to death! Back to bed again.

Then comes the biggest reason of all for separate beds: the other night, for absolutely no comprehensible explanation in the world, I hauled off in the middle of my sleep and punched my wife in the face. The blasted smacking sound woke me right up. My wife was looking at me with total bewilderment and muttering, "You punched me, you punched me." I told her I didn't do it consciously. I mean, I didn't wake up in the middle of the night and think, I've got nothing else to do, so I'll just give my wife a whack across the mouth. She said, "I don't think you've ever punched anyone in your life. But you remember me." I apologized again. That wasn't good enough I guess. I turned over to go back to sleep, and she hauled off and punched me square in the center of my back. I drifted off to sleep thanking God I'd turned over when I did, or I might be looking for a job as a soprano with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

You know, it's funny, but I haven't walked in my sleep since I was a little kid. I've never discussed this aspect with my analyst. Maybe I've got a subconscious need to get up in the middle of the night and take a good old-fashioned stroll for myself. I won't tell my wife this, because she'd probably point me in the direction of Rte. 93 the first time she saw me sleep walking. I think I'd prefer sleeping in separate beds over that.

Or, God forbid, on the couch.

Group O blood needed

Supplies of group O blood are below the critical level. Despite dangerously low summer collections, the Red Cross responded to last night's train collision by rushing close to 50 units of group O blood from all over the region to the area. According to Red Cross officials, had much more blood been needed by accident victims, there might not have been enough in the system to meet area hospital needs. The Red Cross is urging the public to donate blood within the next 72 hours.

According to Peter Page, M.D., chief medical director of the American Red Cross Blood Services-Northeast Region, 1100 more group O donors are needed to restore the blood supply to a safe level. Group O is the most common blood group and can be safely transfused to anyone in emergency situations. All blood groups are needed to maintain services to hospitals.

Blood supplies decline during the summer because many regular donors go away or simply stop giving. This is especially true of students, who donate about 25 percent of the blood supply in this region.

Any healthy adult who weighs at least 110 pounds and has never had viral hepatitis is urged to call 800-342-8748 for a convenient blood donation location.

THE PACK TOOK off eagerly at the beginning of the Fun Run.

SOARING THE SKIES

A lad of twenty-two,
Who joined the Air Force of the red, white and blue.
His one ambition
Was to join the field of Aviation.
On that great day of graduation,
While his love ones stood by with admiration.
The wings so proudly earned
Were pinned upon that Noble Chest so firm.
But sometimes wings get broken too,
Like those of birds so often do.

Wings on high soaring the skies

They never will let my darling die.
Although he has gone to that great blue beyond.
He will always be soaring the skies,
As I gaze into space I can see his dear face
While planes are soaring the skies,
The wings that he loved to his country he gave.
For the country he died to save.
The flights of glory
Bring an end to this true Poem Story
While planes are soaring the skies.

HOW DO I GET OUT?

I built myself a self-tormenting trap
For only me to feel —
To share with others is impossible,
You see it's just not real.
There are no bars, but people can't get in.
My outside's made of steel.
I want to get out soon, but things take time,
My wounds have to heal.
Self-trapped from who? Where? Why?
I wish I knew!
There are things I have to do.
I can't stay locked forever.
I wish I had a key;
I want to find out about someone —
That someone is me.

OUR "LU LU VIOLA POWERS"

Do you have a Lu Lu,
In your neighborhood?
Well, if you don't I'm sorry
For every neighbor should

She's so very thoughtful
Always plays our nurse
Sends us all her funny cards
And writes her very own verse.

Whenever the little ones fell,
Or cried from a painful cut
She'd always take them in Wash, and Band Aid them up.

Once working in a Soldiers Hospital
Two bothersome patients called her in.
She said sternly "I'M NURSE VIOLA"
They laughed, teased, and grinned.

Said one "We call you Lu Lu"
Like it or not we don't care."
And it came to pass much later on,
With one she did life Happily Share.

THE PESTS OF SUMMER

They perform acrobatics on silken threads
They tumble and fall on peoples' heads.

They creep and crawl from ground to tree
They cover almost everything we see.

They munch and crunch on oak and ash
They even give people an ugly rash.

They range in color from black to hairy
brown
They cause many a homeowner to wear a frown.

They have launched a glutinous woodland assault
They ridicule man's feeble efforts to bring them to a halt

They are the gypsy caterpillar moth
They cause man to eat humble pie and froth.

LIFE'S ROUGH

Life's rough
We all know that
Things aren't easy
And that's a fact.
Life's rough
We're trying to make it
Try hard but don't quit
And don't say, "Who gives a s---?"
It may be in neutral or
It may be in motion
It might be blunt
Or show no emotion
Sometimes we don't get enough
But we all know
Life's rough.

I'M A DAYDREAM BELIEVER....

I'm a daydream believer
And I see it all very clear.

Bluebirds, fly
Flying high
Up in the sky.

Clocks, ticking on Moving time
Towards the dawn.

I'm a daydream believer
And I see it all too clear.

Darkness, creeping in Covering all
With it's sin.

Tears, rolling down
Jesting all
Just like a clown.

I'm a daydream believer
And I see it all very clear.

THE WILD RABBIT

He moves through the grass
A shadow in the darkness
Waiting silently.

WINTERTIME

Lacy, icy, frosty flakes,
Making a cover for the earth
Time of sleeping for all snakes,
Time of joy, time of mirth,
Suddenly, the holidays are here
Bells ring in all the streets,
Magic in the sky is near,
Families dine on tasty treats,
Another day is soon to dawn,
When green comes into view,
Sun will shine upon the lawn,
Making sparkles of the dew.

A WILD HORSE

Wild as the wind,
Free as it too,
A horse came down,
Walking on the dew,
Wings on his shoulders,
Rainbows for grooves,
He ran through the stars,
Just missing the roofs.

BEAUTY

The rays of heavenly splendor,
Create a day so fine.
Then darkness will surrender
And out will pour the wine.
The vintage is called sky,
Its spread throughout the land,
It touches even mountain high
It looks onto all man
The great day shall prolong
But slowly exterminate its light.
Then night shall sing a song,
To overtake us with its might,
Once again the sun will rise
Each one will stand there gazing.
We'll all look about and lift our eyes
This sight is truly amazing!

NURSING HOME BLUES

Love is in the eyes of the elderly
Flickering, smouldering
Stop!
Dare you blow it out?
Hear the faint voices
Listen!
Dare you shut them out?
Perhaps
Maybe some
But I can see
One day
This will be
You and me.

MY MODERN LEMON DELUXE

A bucket of nuts, a bushel of bolts
That's what my car is today.
Automatic choke, electronic valves,
That all have their part to play.
With the P.C.V. and the E.G.R.,
Pollution in my modern car today,
to try to give me ulcers.

nothing but black
You'd hold the crank right or your arm, it would crack.

On cold winter morns,
with that car of mine
I'd drive off to work
always on time.

They were wonderful days,
I hope you'll agree
Oh! I wish I still owned

THE TALL SHIPS

by Anthony Manconi

As I stand at dawn on Bunker Hill
At the rising of the tide.
A lonely gull is flying high,
Circling in the sky.
The sun just risen from the bay,
Gives light to a new day.
From distant seas tall ships appear
Just as in yesteryear.

No need to sound bells of alarm
Or fire across their bow.
They come as friends and comrades
In peace forever now.
We welcome them with open arms,
As they sail straight and true.
We hope their stay is filled with love
Til it's time to say, "Adieu."

Internships listed

August signals the last month of summer vacation and the return of thousands of students to their apartments and dormitories. As colleges and universities gear themselves for the first day of classes, so does the Mass. Internship Office.

Presently underway at the Internship Office is their annual update. This happens each summer so that all the internships listed for the coming academic year are current.

The Mass. Internship Office, located in the State House, is a referral agency and clearinghouse for students seeking the chance to apply their academic studies in a professional setting.

"We list opportunities in nine different interest areas," notes the director of the Office, Nancy Spadorcia. "By the end of August we will have all 450 internship positions updated."

She adds, "among the most popular are positions in law and government, communications, and environmental affairs. Some students do an internship for the experience and others are able to get academic credit from their schools."

Anyone interested should call the Internship Office for an appointment at 727-8688. Participation in the internship program is on a volunteer basis and most positions require about 12 to 15 hours per week.

OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE WEEK
A variety of medical screenings, open houses, demonstrations and other events will be held September 13-19th in observance of National Osteopathic Medicine Week.

The nation's 20,000 osteopathic physicians, 205 hospitals and 15 colleges will join the more than 20 million Americans who receive their health care from the osteopathic profession in a special observance of the contributions of osteopathic medicine to American health care.

The observance coincides with the opening of the 15th osteopathic medical school — Southeastern College of Osteopathic Medicine — in North Miami Beach, Florida. The rapidly increasing number of graduates makes osteopathic medicine America's fastest growing health care profession.

PUPPET SHOW

Judith O'Hare will present "Memories of a Chinese Grandmother" for Our Place, M.E.L.D. Inc. on Friday August 21, 1981 at 2:00 P.M. at the First Unitarian Church, Common Street, Stoneham.

This unique puppet show was developed by Ms. O'Hare and involves 24 puppets and between 15 to 20 children as participants in the performance. The children, audience and performers will enjoy the main story of "Grandmother and her box of Chinese memories" along with the Chinese Zodiac and the "Dragon King's Daughter". Admission is 75 cents children and $1. adults.

Judith O'Hare is a puppeteer and educator. She will be performing "Memories of a Chinese Grandmother" at the Museum of Fine Arts on Sunday, August 23, 1981.

HAMMOND CASTLE

Hammond Castle Museum will present Calvin Hampton, organist and composer, on Saturday, August 22 at 8:30 P.M. Mr. Hampton will be playing a selection of his own compositions for organ as well as works by J.S. Bach. Tickets for the concert are $5.50. Students $4.50.

The Roof Top Cafe will be open for pre-concert dinner from 6:30 to 8:00 P.M. (reservations preferred). For additional information, reservations, and tickets, please call 283-7673.

DAYTIME CLASS

Individuals who have considered returning to school and find daytime classes more advantageous may register this fall at Merrimack College as part-time day students.

A full range of liberal Arts, Business and Engineering programs are offered and guidance with course selection is available through the Division of Continuing Education between now and registration.

Registration for part-time day students is scheduled for Tuesday, September 1 from 1:15 to 1:55 p.m. Students should report at that time to the Dean of Continuing Education in the Volpe Physical Education Center. Day classes will begin on Wednesday, September 2.

SOFTBALL GAME

To help raise money for new heart monitors in the

Intensive Care Unit (ICU)

at New England Memorial Hospital, ICU nurses and doctors will play ball August 31 in a benefit game with RKO General's softball team.

To be held at the Stoneham Jr. High field at 8 p.m., the Monday night contest will feature scrub-coeds battling the best in slow pitch from RKO General, which includes radio stations WRKO-AM, WROR-FM, and TV station WNAC-TV, channel 7.

Money raised from ticket sales, donations, and the sale of refreshments and baked goods will go towards the $52,000 needed to purchase five new Hewlett-Packard ECG monitors, sophisticated monitoring equipment already in use in the Critical Care Unit and Operating Room, says Roy Dever, director of critical care nursing at the hospital.

Two-dollar tickets for the game are now on sale at the Information Desk in the main lobby of the hospital. For more information, please call Public Relations at 665-1740, extension 414.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT

A total of 19 short non-credit evening courses related to career and professional development will begin at Salem State College in September in Business Skills, Courses for Nurses, Allied Health and the Helping Professions (CEU's awarded), Job Searching, and Test Preparation.

The courses are among 81 enrichment special programs offered this fall. Further information, including brochures with course descriptions, may be obtained from the Division of Graduate and Continuing Education, Room 102, Sullivan Building, Salem State College, Salem, Mass. telephone 745-0556, ext. 233.

DIVORCE RESOURCE

The Divorce Resource and Mediation Center will present a free lecture on Post Divorce Life Styles on Wednesday evening, August 26 at 8 p.m. at our Center, located at 2464 Mass. Ave. in North Cambridge. Separation and divorce brings with it a need to re-evaluate the way we live and share with others. In this workshop there will be a discussion of the variety of possibilities available to people in the Greater Boston Area. For more information call 492-3533.

COLLEGE FAIR

Representatives from more than 200 New England colleges and universities will be available to answer questions and supply information to high school students and their parents at a college fair to be co-sponsored and hosted by Merrimack College in September.

The college fair, co-sponsored for the fourth consecutive year by the New England Association of College Admissions Counselors (NEACAC) and Merrimack College, will be held September 24 from 7 to 9 p.m. and September 25 from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the S. Peter Volpe Physical Education Center.

Students from 73 Merrimack Valley, Cape Ann and North Shore high schools and their parents will be able to obtain first-hand information on college curriculums, financial aid, career development, and other related topics.

"The fair at Merrimack will once again afford high school students, particularly seniors, an excellent opportunity early in the approaching school year to discuss future educational and career plans with many New England college and university admissions officers," remarked Dr. E. Joseph Lee, Merrimack's dean of admissions and financial aid.

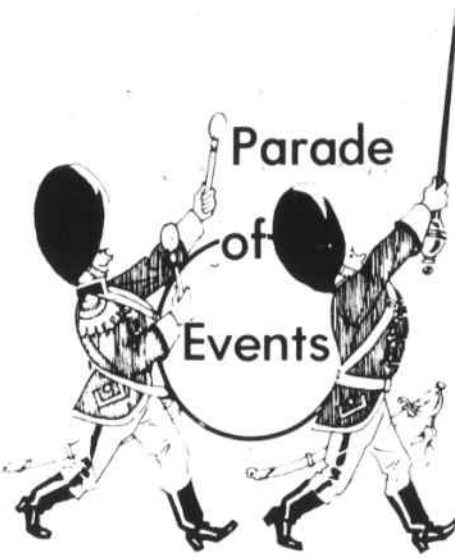

Over 7,000 high school seniors, parents, teachers, and guidance counselors attended last year's college fair at Merrimack and an estimated 8,000 will attend this year's fair.

The college fair at Merrimack is one of 14 major regional college fairs to be presented by the NEACAC and host colleges and universities throughout the New England states this fall.

Merrimack College is located in North Andover at the junction of Routes 114 and 25, off Routes 495 and 93.

LEARNING IN RETIREMENT

Harvard Institute for Learning in Retirement—Harvard University, B-3 Lehman Hall, Cambridge. Telephone 495-4973. Applications now being accepted for membership for academic year 1981-82. The Institute provides semi-retired and retired men and women with opportunities to participate in a variety of study groups based on cooperative leadership, with self-determination of curriculum and volunteer peer-teaching. Social activities and University privileges included. Fall 1981 Term membership $90; academic year 1981-82 membership $180. Fall Term begins Sept. 12. Call for further information and to receive membership application form.

RECREATION CAMP

The Cambridge family Y is operating a family and adult recreation camp this season for the first time. Janet Smargon, Director of the camp said, "When parents would bring their children to camp many of them said they wished they could stay." It gave us the idea of running a camp for families and adults. It will give adults a chance to become kids again. Tennis, swimming, rowing, sailing, canoeing, aerobic dance and fitness classes are just a few of its activities that will be offered.

Families — Begins Wednesday evening, August 26 to Friday evening, August 28th.

Activities will be geared to family participation.

Singles — Begin Friday evening, August 28th to Sunday evening, August 30th. (This is not Labor Day weekend).

Call the Cambridge Family Y at 876-3860 for further information.

UNDER THE TENT

A three-day weekend of evangelistic meetings is planned for The Salvation Army Camp Wonderland in Sharon on September 5-7, 1981.

Lt. Colonel Raymond J. Wilson, Salvation Army Secretary for Business Administration in the Northern United States, will be the guest preacher for the series of meetings which runs from Saturday through Monday.

RETRAINING

The New England Rehabilitation Hospital, Woburn, is helping retrain specific members of the health care field who are returning to full-time work after being away from their jobs for several years.

The new program is in charge of the New England Institute for Research and Education, affiliated with the 200-bed facility.

The updating of skills for registered nurses, occupational therapist, physical therapists and speech clinicians will continue for three months under funding to the Minuteman Technical School by the occupational education division of the State Department of Education.

Four registered nurses and two occupational therapists are just completing the first 25-hour class and clinical training.

The program, designed to combat shortages of skilled personnel in the health care field, is free to people who are re-entering their former professions.

BLUE HILLS ROAD RACE

Over 500 runners will be expected at the starting line of the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company's Blue Hills Road Race to be held Saturday, September 26, 1981, starting at 10:00 A.M.

The third annual 8-mile race will feature eight divisions for men and women; junior, open, masters and seniors.

"Tee" shirts will be given to the first 500 pre-entrants who submit their applications prior to September 12, 1981. The nominal entry fee covers the cost of awards, refreshments and "Tee shirts." Applications may be obtained by contacting your local Boston Mutual office or the race director, Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company, personnel department in Canton, 828-7000.

ATOMIC VETERANS

The National Association of Atomic Veterans is engaged in the largest manhunt in the history of our country. NAAV is looking for over 250,000 veterans (or their widows and children) whose health may have been adversely affected as a result of the U.S. nuclear weapons testing program that took place between 1945 and 1962.

NAAV, which is headquartered in Burlington, Iowa, is organizing in chapters across the country to locate and warn the atomic veterans and their families, encouraging them to seek prompt medical attention.

Over the next two months, NAAV National Coordinator Andy Hawkings will be in Nevada, Arizona, Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, New York and the New England states to set up new chapters of NAAV.

Massachusetts Veterans who were subjected to radiation from these military atomic weapons blasts will be meeting with Hawkings and Bernard Durkin on August 22nd to establish a Massachusetts Chapter of NAAV.

Mr. Hawkings will be arriving in Massachusetts about August 20th. A Press Conference will be held. Hawkings or Mr. Durkin will be contacting you in the near future with the specific date, time and place of that Press Conference. Meeting of veterans will be held on August 22nd at 13 Sellers Street, Cambridge, Mass. — Rear of St. Peter's Church.

EDUCATIONAL INFO.

Are you planning on returning to school but are unsure about what to expect or how to go about it?

Newbury Junior College's Lowell Campus will be holding an Educational Information Seminar on Thursday, August 27, at 7:00 p.m. The seminar will be held at our Lowell facility, 530 Stevens Street.

Art comes alive in Stoneham

By STEVAN-ADELE MORLEY

Believe it or not, Stoneham has had a real art studio and gallery within its city limits since early 1980! To the best of my knowledge, this is the only art studio and gallery located this side of Boston. The far-sighted duo who owns and runs the establishment is Steven Shade and Maryellen Conway.

Steven, who calls himself "an abstract surrealist" grew up in Newton. He went to Curry College in Milton. After receiving his Masters in Art Therapy and Humanistic Psychology at Boston University, Steven became an Art Therapist. For a while he ran a program for schizophrenics in Fitchburg. He is a certified Social Worker. He plays a professional jazz guitar and believes "My art came from all this and has expanded my whole creative process." Though a young man, in his early thirties, Steven had spent considerable time in Europe. He says he "Was at the Wailing Wall when the war broke out in 1973." He also spent over two years studying his craft in Paris, Spain, Italy, Holland and England.

Maryellen is a graduate of Massachusetts College of Art. She is a B.F.A. Certified Art Specialist with over eight years of teaching. She worked in Wilmington in the public schools as an art teacher for many years. She says, "At the age of five I knew I would be an art teacher someday. I have always loved art. I was born with the love and, thank God, the talent. It is a gift."

Shade and Conway met at a Flea Market in Medford. "She was selling art work," Shade explained. "I had just come from playing softball. I was interested not only in the girl but in an antique lamp. I was equally attracted to both the lamp and the person selling it. I offered a price. She said she wanted a better one. I called her - after some difficulty. We met. It wasn't long before we realized the merging of our talents. We greatly influenced each others' work. We both learned how nice it is to be with someone sensitive to art and to the arts. We made the plunge and started Art's N Facts together."

Steven and Maryellen became engaged to marry while on an "art trip" to Canada. Maryellen explained, "Steve had it all designed. It was his plan to propose to me in a particular art gallery, while standing before my favorite painting. It was very romantic and touching. Now I have two reasons for remembering Morris Louis, a great contemporary painter."

Shade gave Conway an exquisite diamond necklace for an engagement gift. He presented it to her under the hanging Louis painting. "I decided on the necklace because she wears few rings due to her work," Shade explained.

Four years ago they merged again - they bought an old home in Winchester. "Prices were lower then," Shade said. "We've had to do a lot of work on the house but it's all been great fun."

Their home does not resemble your normal average one. Maryellen's weavings, influenced by African culture, hang everywhere. The six-room house does resemble a small museum. They each have a good-sized area in a very large studio. Steven admits "I'm not as neat as Maryellen. Walk into our studio and you can tell whose side is which." There is dark ebony wood. There are countless framed photographs that Maryellen gets the credit for. She has a green thumb that appears as healthy as her plants. Her ferns are extraordinary. They each have an appreciation for the work of their friends and other artists. They use such work to decorate their home.

Shade said, "While I'm painting, I play my guitar. I look at the work in progress, play and meditate. Both helps the other. I believe meditating to music helps to influence the art."

Maryellen works similarly. "I like to sing while working. While Steve plays the guitar I often recite poetry."

Shade recorded an album. "I'm a big hit in Sweden," he laughed.

In the Art's N Facts studio and gallery, Shade plays semi-classic and classical and jazz music during the day. "Lots of students work better to classics and I've turned many people on to good music," he said.

Though they have a home in Winchester, they explained they created the studio and gallery in Stoneham "because we feel it is the hub of this entire area."

Art's N Facts is a fine arts studio and gallery. "We felt the need in the community for such a place," Shade explained. "Culture is needed everywhere. We wanted our place to be accessible and easy to reach. We first talked with art directors of Stoneham schools. Ted Schwab has been very helpful. All local Art Directors have been so helpful."

Shade explained, "We are using Art's N Facts as an alternative for local students to acquire a varied portfolio for college. Mass. Art and Fine Arts is so involved and difficult to travel to in this community."

They firmly believe that their studio and gallery is surviving in this environment "because of our backgrounds. We are applying talents. You see, culture is here, in Stoneham. But it has been untapped. We have that combination of classically oriented art with self-expression. A good combination!"

The artists by night, teachers by day say they are normal, healthy, motivated people. "Everyone owes it to himself to use the time he has to express what is really the individual. We don't only teach art. Art is not separate from life. We teach a way of life. Folks need outlets. Art is a means of expression to help you to feel better about yourself. Art is a tool. We use that tool. We try to inspire, encourage and assist others to use the same tool. Everyone is creative. Everyone has a talent."

Shade and Conway found an old house at 489 Main Street, on Route 28. They rented the top floor and started teaching adults and children. Shade said the ideal age to teach is from six to sixteen. It wasn't long before they opened more space after renting it. They made a gallery out of it to exhibit. They began to sell art work. They put on shows. Held open house.

As an Art Consultant, Steven needs space to exhibit at best advantage. He does residential homes and lots of commission work.

Soon, hopefully in a month or so, they will rent yet another room. As soon as this is accomplished, "We will teach Special Needs students," Shade told me. "We are going to teach photography in the near future. And, eventually, we are going to open up a pottery studio. We strive to employ the holistic approach to art in all we teach."

Art's N Facts - if there is a motto it is Shade's philosophy that "We teach the whole person!" - tries first of all to "make folks comfortable." Shade explained, "We don't teach from the wrist down. Here it's one-to-one. Our work space is actually an extension of ourselves. We try very hard to convey this feeling to every person who enters our doors."

The studio is loftlike. A coffee pot offers continuous refreshment. There may be a rocker for those who best think in motion. Gingerale breaks are offered for the younger students.

In this studio there are skylights, music, live plants, bright carpeting on the floor. The studio is literally a work shop. There are Maryellen's weavings on the wall, capturing the sun in their colors. There are stained glass windows that reflect like prisms on the stark walls.

Conway explained, "Next year we will offer a free lecture series. It's still in the planning stage. We hope to write a column in the local paper too, to give art tips."

Steven Shade and Maryellen Conway in Art's N Facts Studio and Gallery in Stoneham.

Both Shade and Conway feel "Very happy with what we've accomplished. We advertise by word of mouth. And we get ninety percent repeats of adults and children students."

Shade said they have ideal classes. The largest percentage of their young students come from the town. This summer they will conduct Children's Classes from 3:30 until 5:00 afternoons. And they hold Saturday classes, as well. Other children's courses they teach are - beside drawing and painting - sculpture, printing, puppetry and calligraphy.

Stairs separate the studio from the gallery, where they do interior design, display works, and get most of their commission work.

During the Art's N Facts tour through the gallery and drawing room, I met Barbara Clifford, a Melrose resident. She was busy studying textures. The eight week student was creating a very realistic cat. Clifford's daughter, Beth, ten years old, was busy drawing also. She said she "Is interested in everything."

The walls in this area are covered with Maryellen's and Steven's work: pastels, watercolors, oils, works in every medium.

I met Margie Pizzo, a Woburn resident. She was working in pen and ink. Pizzo is interested in calligraphy.

Another student, Genevieve Tetrault, who hails from Medford, said "I'm taking advantage of everything this place offers." She has been an ongoing student now for over six months. Tetrault is interested in still-lives at the present.

Claire Collins, now into oils and seascapes, was a student from Malden. Maryellen Zuk, from Stoneham, said she planned to use her lessons in calligraphy to make cards, gifts and posters. Dorothy Fernald, from Wakefield, said her classes at the studio were a nice alternative to television. She is into poetry and hopes to use calligraphy to better express herself. Aurilia Simpson, a resident of Stoneham for over 22 years, said she was at present learning oils. She said she had taken previous courses and is now happy to be into the real thing.

Courses presented for adults are beginning painting, advanced painting, drawing, calligraphy, stained glass, sculpture, art appreciation, water and oil colors, and others.

An associate, Debra Wish, who taught for years in the Malden public schools, works with Shade and Conway part time.

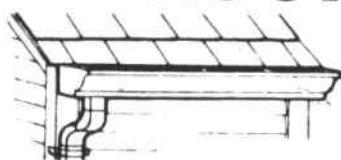

Larry Glickman, a superb framer who resides in Stoneham, lectures, gives demonstrations on framing, explains the right types of frames, et cetera, frequently at the studio.

Periodically, Shade and Conway load two cars with students, adults and young children (the later after acquiring the necessary parental permission) and take them to Harvard Museum or to the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. They also offer evening excursions to all students.

"We never tire of sharing or helping newcomers to art in coming aware of the great beauty and talent that such museums offer," Conway explained.

Art's N Facts Studio and Gallery is fine art in every aspect. It lends its atmosphere as any studio and gallery does. And Stoneham, and this area, is extremely fortunate to have two such fine young people and artists as Maryellen Conway and Steven Shade.

4-H FAIR
One of the sensational entertainment values of the summer will be happening August 28, 29 and 30 at the Westford 4-H Fairgrounds. The annual Middlesex County 4-H Fair, the largest all-youth fair in the eastern part of the country, will be taking place on the above dates, and once again this year's 4-H Fair will demonstrate that the Middlesex County 4-Hers continue "to make the best better."

Cattle and cavies, poultry, pigeons, and pigs will be at this year's 4-H Fair, as well as goats, rabbits and sheep. There are also exhibits ranging from flowers to photography, handyman to honey, and in other areas including food preservation, needlework, vegetables, and art. All of the exhibits are prepared by Middlesex County 4-Hers ages 8-19. 4-Hers will also be riding in a 3-day horse show featuring both English and Western style of riding.

Besides these continuous events, there will be special events including a horse pull, auction, puppet show, fashion show, country store, children's games, hayrides and much, much more.

Admission to the Middlesex County 4-H Fair is free for children under 12, 50 cents for senior citizens, and $1.50 for a one-day pass or $3.00 for a three-day pass for children over 12 and adults. Compared to the current costs of movies, roller skating and comic books, the Middlesex County 4-H Fair is a bargain. Where else can you find educational entertainment for such a reasonable price?

Expanded parking is available directly across from the 4-H Fairgrounds which are located on South Chelmsford Road in Westford and can easily be reached by Routes 495 and 110 and by Route 27.

The dates of the 4-H Fair are August 28, 29 and 30. Come to the Middlesex County 4-H Fair. You'll be both supporting a fantastic program and having a fantastic time for a low price.

For further information call the Middlesex County Extension Service 4-H Office at 369-4845 or 862-2380.

SMOKE DETECTORS
Some commercial and residential battery-operated photoelectric smoke detectors sold since 1979 under the brand names of Chloride Pyrotec, Archer, Masterguard, Vanguard, Vantage I and Protecter Systems are being recalled because a potentially defective electronic microchip may prevent the alarm from sounding in the presence of smoke.

The recall is being conducted voluntarily by the Chloride Pyrotec Division of Chloride, Inc., Hingham, Mass., in cooperation with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Some of the firm's 185,000 smoke detectors manufactured from March 1, 1979 to March 15, 1981 may contain a transistor array semiconductor that will not operate in the presence of smoke.

Parade of Events

Owners of the smoke detectors have been asked by the manufacturer to remove the back plate of the product so that the model or code number may be checked on the interior housing. Potentially defective smoke detectors include the following:

Chloride Pyrotec — Models 3077, 3078, or 3079; Archer number 275453 sold through Radio Shack; Masterguard MGB 360; Vanguard 817; and Protecter Systems P365. Potentially defective models also will have a 6-digit date code on the housing showing dates between 030179 and 031581.

ROTC PROGRAM
Air Force ROTC (Reserve Officer Training Course) will be offered at Northern Essex Community College beginning this Fall, it was announced recently by colleges president John R. Dimitry. An agreement has been signed with the Air Force and the University of Lowell to offer the program at the Haverhill institution. The agreement will permit Northern Essex students to participate in the University of Lowell ROTC program. Participants will take a one-hour class at Northern Essex and a one-hour leadership lab at the University of Lowell.

Students enrolled in ROTC may be eligible for scholarships that pay all tuition, fees and books, in addition to a $100 per month stipend. The program is open to first and second year male and female students at the college, and there is no obligation to join the Air Force if a student participates in ROTC.

LYRIC OPERA
The Boston Lyric Opera Company will bring its 1981-1982 season to Northeastern University as the result of a recent agreement between the two institutions. Effective August 1, the Boston Lyric Opera Company became formally affiliated with the Fine Arts Division of the Northeastern University College of Arts and Sciences. As a result, the company's productions will be held in the Northeastern University Alumni Auditorium, 360 Huntington Ave., Boston. This year's productions are Mozart's The Abduction from the Seraglio (September 25 and 27), Massenet's Werther (October 21 and 23), and Bellini's Norma (January 15 and 17).

The company's offices are now located in the Creative Arts Office in Northeastern's Cushing Hall, 102 The Fenway.

POETRY READING
A poetry reading by Northeastern University faculty members Joseph de Roche and Stuart Peterfreund will take place at noon on Wednesday, August 26. The two will read from their published works and works in progress in the Studio Theatre of Northeastern University's Ell Student Center, 360 Huntington Avenue, Boston. The reading, which is open to the public, is part of the Northeastern Summer Series sponsored by the Creative Arts Office of Northeastern University. Admission is free. For more information, please call 437-2443 or 437-2249.

Consumer tips on car purchases

Q. I bought a used 1979 car for $4,100 three months ago. Last week the car developed transmission problems. The dealer will not fix my car because the 1,000 mile — 1 month warranty, whichever comes first, had expired. A mechanic has told me that the transmission will cost $500 to repair. I think the dealer should pay for parts and labor because I've only had the car for three months and it cost $4,100. Do I have any recourse?

A. Yes, Massachusetts has laws and agencies that will assist you in finding a remedy to your problem. The 1,000 mile — 1 month warranty, whichever comes first is an example of an express warranty, given to you by the dealer. The items covered in this warranty usually include a promise by the dealer to replace parts and pay for the labor if the car's power train becomes defective during that time. But, different dealers may include different parts in the express warranty.

All cars sold in Massachusetts by dealers also come with an automatic guarantee (Implied Warranty of Merchantability). A person is defined as a dealer if he is engaged in the business of selling, offering for sale or negotiating the retail sale of a motor vehicle. This warranty cannot be disclaimed by the dealer and automatically becomes part of the sales contract. The Implied Warranty of Merchantability states that "the car is fit to be driven safely on the roads, and that the car will remain in good running condition for a reasonable period of time." Problems often occur because there aren't any clear cut answers to what is a "reasonable period of time."

Farm facts

The U.S. Soil Conservation Service, participating in a study of 12 federal agencies, now has completed maps of prime farmlands in ten states. When these maps are finished for all states, communities will be able to use their land to greatest advantage. The problem of the destruction of agricultural and other land areas is considered as serious as the energy crisis, Massachusetts Audubon reports.

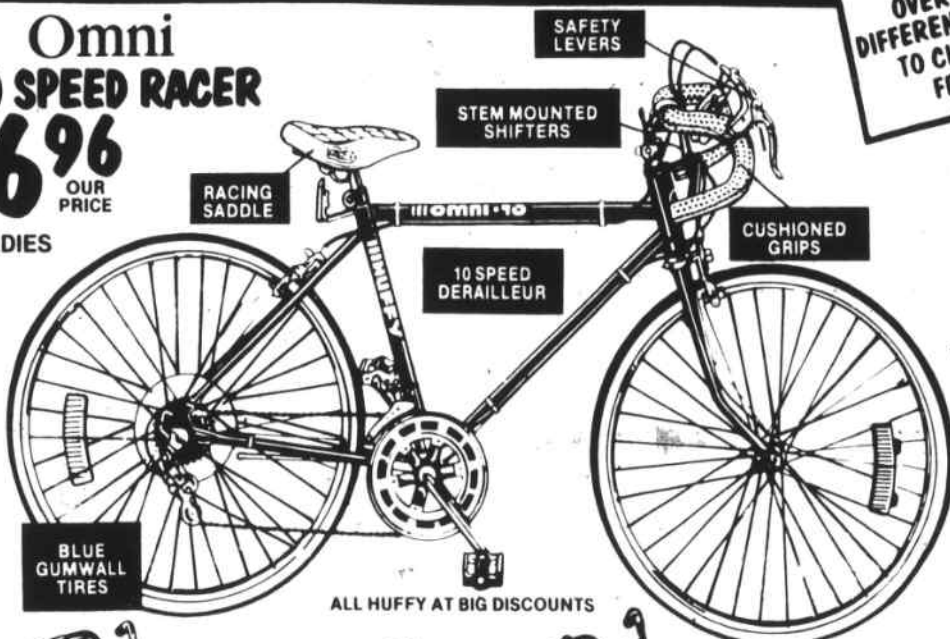

Land used for sunflower cultivation in this country rose from a few thousand acres in 1970 to 4 million acres by 1980. During 1979 and 1980, 5.6 million tons of seeds were produced. Each flower may have 250 to 1,000 seeds. Sunflowers can produce more oil (from the seeds) per unit of land than any other crop, according to Massachusetts Audubon.

Dad takes a break to care for baby

By Deborah Churchman

First, the bad news about fatherhood in the United States, from a paper by Prof. Urie Bronfenbrenner of Cornell University:

"In one study, middle-class fathers reported spending an average of 15 to 20 minutes a day playing with their one-year-old infants. In another, fathers recorded by microphones were found to spend an average of 37.7 seconds a day with their infants."

And then, there's Vinny Parisi, father of 5½-month-old Dana Marie, and one of the few employees in the country to take advantage of AT&T's noncompensatory paternity leave policy.

Six weeks after Dana Marie was born, Mr. Parisi left his job as service manager for New Jersey Bell to care for his daughter, a job he calls "wonderful."

"It's so fun - I love little kids to begin with, and to be able to take care of my own child, and watch this little baby grow and change is really special," says the new father.

The decision to take paternity leave, Mr. Parisi says, was strictly economic. His wife, an assistant manager at New Jersey Bell, "makes a better salary than I do," he says, "and who wants to go into the poorhouse so I can be macho?"

Admitting that he "takes a little jiving" about his new career - "it's a bit on the unusual side" - he says most of their friends understand their situation, and support their choice.

At the beginning, though, the new grandparents had some difficulties with his fulltime fatherhood. "This happens to be the first grandchild on both sides," he explains, "and at first, they weren't sure if I could handle it. But then, when they saw me in action, they relaxed. Now we get full support from both sets of parents."

Mr. Parisi has no real complaints about his new job ("It does get a bit boring - I've caught up on a lot of my reading"), and enjoys the "freedom" of staying home so much, he's decided to go for another six months.

AT&T offers six months "care of newborn child" leave to any parent, mother or father, of any newborn child, biological or adoptive. At the end of six months, the parent must be offered a job and salary comparable to the one he or she left.

But the employee may opt, like Mr. Parisi, to stay out an additional six months, at the end of which his employer will make an effort to place him, without guarantees. Mr. Parisi believes the risk of unemployment is worth it, however, because "babysitters are hard to come by. And besides, we feel that we don't want to give her to someone else yet."

The benefit Mr. Parisi is using is similar to other paternity-leave policies offered by only a small percent of the nation's corporations, according to a new survey by the nonprofit women's business firm, Catalyst. In addition, a few firms not offering paternity leave per se will consider fatherhood as a reason in granting unpaid personal leave. IBM, for example, grants such a leave for up to one year; and Equitable Life Assurance Society has unpaid leave for up to two years.

But most of the paternity-leave policies are like the one held by CBS: "Basically the same as maternity leave, but without the sick pay," says Jeff Guyverson of the broadcasting firm's personnel department.

"Any employee who has worked here for at least a year has the option to take six months' leave without pay at the birth of his child," he says. Mr. Guyverson personally knows of only two men to have taken this option, a fact he attributes to economics, "since there's no pay involved, they tend to shun away from it."

Other firms with the paternity benefit report the same sort of reluctance - "people are not exactly standing in line to get this," says Phil Junker, spokesman for AT&T. Mr. Junker admits that the disparity in pay between men and women across the nation could account for many of these decisions, since it would make more pocketbook sense to have the spouse with the smaller earnings drop out and take care of the child.

But he believes that "traditional thinking" inhibits the decision as well: "The idea that the mother should be home raising the child still exists," he says.

There is another factor personnel officers do not talk about, and that is the effect paternity leave has on a man's career.

An employee of a large M. eastern firm, who prefers to remain anonymous, points to a gap between those setting the paternity policy and those administering it: "My boss, before I took leave, hauled me into his office, called me weird, and told me to rethink my decision. Well, I've been with the company 11 years and have learned to read the tea leaves a bit - I know that when your boss asks you to rethink your decision, he wants a different decision."

But he continued to exercise his paternity leave option, he says, "for two reasons - first, we're not near our families." He also knew his wife would need some help for a while. "And second, I wanted to do it - I've never been a parent before, and I wanted to get to know my baby."

The experience, he says, had a "big impact on me. I'm not sure if it will have much impact on (his daughter), though I think we've gotten to know each other very well, the lines of communication are open."

"But it's given me a lot of appreciation for the relationship with my daughter," he says, "and a lot of appreciation for a day in the life of a housewife - it's easy to underestimate what a housewife does."

Returning to work was easy, he says, in one sense. "In a large bureaucratic organization like ours, things move very slowly. So being out for six months, it's like you were gone for one day."

In another sense, however, the return to work has been hard on him. "For one thing, it's not nearly as satisfying as being home with my baby," he begins. And now,

By Paul Conklin

Those who do stay home seem sold on the idea

he claims, he is paying the cost of taking the leave. "On evaluations, I am automatically moved to the bottom rung. My immediate supervisor told me it was because of the paternity leave, though my boss says it's something else."

Asked if he thinks he has made it any easier for the next man to ask for paternity leave, he says with evident bitterness, "I think the next person will understand just what the cost is - it's not entirely secret around here that management just doesn't go for this."

Over at the Ford Foundation, headquartered in New York City, management not only goes for paternity leave, but pays for it as well, making it possibly the first organization in the country to offer compensatory leave.

Under the Ford Foundation policy, any staff member may take up to 26 weeks of leave to care for a newborn or recently adopted child up to the age of five. The first eight weeks - four of which can be taken before the date of birth - are given with full pay; the remainder can be taken without pay.

Those who do take paternity leave seem sold on the idea, despite economic hardships and possible career stigmas. Says the Midwestern father, "I know of several guys who are thinking of redirecting their energy toward their families this way. It makes you remember what you're working for."

4H's learn how to live

Members involved in the gardening, entomology and food preservation programs put hands on experience from time of planting to time of harvesting. The 4-H Council, sponsored by Kerr Glass Manufacturing Company (food preservation) provide scholarships in recognition for 4-H accomplishment in these programs.

Growing vegetables involves more than just planting the seeds and watching the plants grow. Aside from routine chores like weeding, watering and fighting bugs, there are other matters to deal with, including thinning, transplanting and deciding what to do with all the goodies once they start ripening.

4-H members in gardening, entomology and food preservation projects conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service, combine study with actual hands-on experiences. Good planning precedes planting in the garden and is essential to achieving overall satisfying results. The national 4-H gardening program, supported by the Ortho Consumer Products of erradicating insects that are harmful to fruits and vegetables. Be sure to use insect and disease controls as directed by the state and federal agencies.

A bountiful garden offers several alternatives for use of crops. Aside from enjoying fresh vegetables, members in the national 4-H food preservation program, sponsored by Kerr Glass Manufacturing Company, lengthen enjoyment of their crops through canning, freezing and drying.

They offer these guidelines: —Preserve only what you can use within a single year. While the food will remain safe to eat after that, quality may deteriorate.

Division, Chevron Chemical Company, encourages members to submit soil samples for analysis, learn insect and weed control methods, mulch and irrigation techniques, seedbed preparation and seed selection and planting.

Extension specialists say tilling the soil will help reduce the number of overwintering insects by exposing them to an unfavorable climate, as well as to birds and other predators. Tilling also helps to control weeds that steal valuable moisture and nutrients and serve as hosts for insects and diseases.

The national 4-H entomology program, supported by Mobay Chemical Corporation, Agricultural Chemicals Division, teaches 4-H members to recognize garden pests and learn methods

More information on the 4-H programs can be obtained from county extension offices.

Salvation Army needs your help

Income from The Salvation Army's annual spring and summer mailings in Massachusetts are keeping pace with the results of a year ago, but still are not keeping up with the effects of inflation, according to Lt. Colonel Wallace C. Conrath, head of The Salvation Army in the states.

Funds raised through the Emergency Disaster Services which support fire fighters, disaster workers and victims various mailings are used to support a wide variety of local emergency services in cities and towns from North Adams to Provincetown. While most of the funds are used to meet crises which may occur within family units and among the transient population, there are some other types of services which benefit the residents of the state. For instance, some funds may support one of the sessions at Camp Wonderland in Sharon.

According to Lt. Colonel

Conrath

Conrath, Salvation Army Service Units, volunteer wherever needed. This summer at least 1500 children from Bay State cities and towns will attend manned, are usually the one spot in any community that a person in need can be assured of finding the assistance he needs. If this is to continue, the level of support from residents and business people must continue to grow.

"We are confident," he said, "that the citizens of Massachusetts will not let us down this year." Contributions may be sent to any local Treasurer of The Salvation Army or the state headquarters at 147 Berkeley Street, Boston, Ma. 02116.

ELECTRONICS ENGINEERS

Senior/Staff Engineer, Electronic Circuit Design

Will support analysis, design and testing of electronic subsystems. Analytic capabilities should include worst case analysis for temperature extremes, voltage transients design margins. Familiarity with computer modeling desired. Generation of equivalent circuits for interface definition. Establishment of test criteria. BSEE or MSEE with minimum of 5 years design experience in Digital TTL, CMOS and Analog Circuitry is required.

Lead/Senior Electronics Engineer

Will support the design of analog and digital circuits. Should be familiar with military specifications governing the parts and design of airborne electronics. Will support generation of test plans and conduct of development testing. BSEE with minimum of 5 years experience is required.

Sr. Electronics Engineer - Test Equipment Designer

Positions open in design of both manual and automatic test equipment. Capabilities in test requirements analysis, software, and test support considered valuable assets.

Radar Design

Lead/Senior and Junior level positions in rf and signal processor design for sophisticated airborne radar. Openings exist for solid state transmitter, receiver, oscillator and signal processor designers. Openings also exist for radar/ECM systems analysts.

Circuit Analysis Engineers

To accomplish transient response analysis in time and frequency domain as well as prepare and conduct experiments to verify design analysis. BSEE or BS in Engineering Physics required.

Antenna Engineers

Openings exist for both junior and senior antenna engineers for satellite and missile antenna system studies, design and development. Designs include those for free space and plasma environments.

EMC Engineers

Analyze and test analog, digital, and RF circuits and systems to demonstrate electromagnetic compatibility. Experience with computer aided analysis and specifications 461, 462, 6051, 1541 and 1512 desirable. Junior and senior positions available.

Microprocessor Software Engineering

Opportunities exist for software engineers at all levels in real-time radar signal processing on a microprocessor based system.

All candidates must have previous assembly language programming experience on 8080 type microprocessors. Senior level applicants must also have previous microprocessor hardware exposure; microprogramming on bit-slice systems would be a plus.

Tasks will require an understanding of system level considerations, and how they can be incorporated into the system software.

Senior Packaging Engineer

Candidate must be able to design and lead detailed implementation of packaging of RF/IF and digital circuits for missile/avionics equipment with severe size and environmental constraints.

Ability to perform and direct thermal analysis is a must. Abilities should include formulating solutions to EMC/RFI requirements, and partitioning circuits into realizable hybrid IC's. An interest in developing compact packages using hybrid circuits is a definite plus.

Management potential exists, specifically, overseeing designing and drafting operations.

BSEE or BSME with a minimum of five years experience is required.

RF Engineering Aide

Candidate will work in Engineering Development Laboratory with advanced missile electronics.

Should be familiar with RF microstrip circuit construction, testing and debugging in the 1-10 GHz frequency range.

Working knowledge of RF test equipment and test procedures required to test components such as amplifiers, mixers and oscillators is a must.

Avco offers a liberal benefits program that includes full Company paid Dental and Retirement Plans, an education policy of full tuition reimbursement, and excellent salary commensurate with your educational and professional background.

Make it hot

By Linda St. Thomas
Smithsonian News Service

Summer just wouldn't be summer — at least not in America — without barbecue.

"Sitting around eating ribs or chicken coated with a tangy sauce and cooked over an open fire is my idea of a perfect night," barbecue expert W.J. Strickland says. His 20 years' experience behind the grill recently earned him a spot at the Smithsonian's 15th annual Festival of American Folklife where he cooked ribs from 5 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily for two weeks.

Barbecue is a tradition of the South, but you don't have to be a Southerner to enjoy it. You just have to know what you're doing, take your time cooking and not mind messy fingers, Strickland advises.

At the Festival, Strickland and fellow expert Grover Price of Tarboro, N.C., cooked on 14-foot-long oven pits made of cement blocks, going through about 1,600 pounds of ribs and 600 pounds of chicken a day, all topped with 30 gallons of sauce. At home, though, most people will be using standard outdoor grills to cook modest amounts of ribs, chicken or chopped beef.

Say you're cooking up some barbecue in your backyard. What's the first thing to do? Work on that critical element, the fire. If it's just charcoal, use only 10 or 12 coals and wait until they begin to turn ash white before putting the meat on. Price says. For a lighter flavor and a great aroma, you may use hickory and oak chips with a smaller amount of charcoal.

Either way, the experts agree, it takes at least 40 minutes for the charcoal, or the coal and wood combination, to be "just right" for the meat. Too many people rush this process and put meat over cold charcoals or over flames, charring the outside and leaving uncooked pork or chicken inside.

"The quality of meat is important in a barbecue," Strickland says. "You can't just cook any old fatty meat and expect it to taste great with sauce." He and Price prefer three-down ribs, that is, slabs of spare ribs that weigh 3 pounds or less. (The larger slabs, for example, 5 and 6 pounds, have tougher meat with more fat). The ribs are cooked for an hour to an hour-and-a-half and the large pieces of chicken (broilers or fryers) should stay on the grill about an hour.

Then again, if you really follow the traditional Southern-style barbecue menu, you may not have room for dessert.

BARBECUE SAUCE

(2 quarts)

- 3 chickens halved or several three-down ribs
- 2 cups catsup
- 1/2 cup beer
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons soy or Teriyaki sauce
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 2 tablespoons minced garlic
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon basil leaves
- 1 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme
- 1/2 teaspoon oregano
- 1/2 teaspoon chili powder
- 1/4 teaspoon cayenne

Mix all sauce ingredients in a 2-quart saucepan and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer about 10 minutes. When the meat is just about done, brush sauce on and turn. Repeat several times for five or 10 minutes. Remaining sauce may be heated and served on the side.

Calling all cats

By WILLIAM PACINO

The largest cat show in New England will come to the grand ballroom of the Copley Plaza on Saturday and Sunday, August 22 and 23. Over 400 cats will be exhibited, representing more than 30 breeds.

Highlighting this year's show will be the presentation, on Sunday of the Morris Trophy. The trophy, named after that finicky cat of media fame, will be awarded to the "Best Household Pet."

The show will be open to the public between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. There is an admission charge.

Proceeds of the show, as in past years, will benefit various feline welfare organizations. Recipients have included Angell Memorial Hospital, the Animal Rescue League and Tufts Veterinary School of Medicine.

Cranberry Quilts

"The Cranberry itself - from the plant to the delicious end uses" - is the theme for the 4th National Cranberry Quilt Patch Contest.

Sponsored by the Mass. Cranberry Festival, the contest annually attracts entries from around the country. Top prize in this year's competition is $100 with 14 runner-up prizes of $20 each.

Contestants should submit patches made of cotton or a cotton blend using pieced, embroidered or appliqued techniques only. The patch must be an exact 15" square, plus 1" seam allowances. Name and address of the entrant should be written or embroidered on muslin and secured to the patch back. Entries must be mailed to: 1981 Cranberry Festival, c/o Mrs. Nancy Mott, 499 South Meadow Road, RFD Number 5, Carver, Mass. 02330 by Sept. 1, 1981, the contest deadline. Patches will become the property of the Mass. Cranberry Festival.

Winners will be selected during the Mass. Cranberry Festival, Oct. 3-4, 10-11-12 at Edaville Railroad, Route 58, South Carver, Mass. Winning patches will form the 1981 National Cranberry Quilt, slated to be displayed at major quilting events and civic ceremonies throughout the coming year.

Gloucester Festival

Discover the picturesque charm and rustic beauty of one of America's oldest seaports at the 1st annual Gloucester Waterfront Festival, August 22-23 (raindate August 24). Hand-blown lead glass, scrimshaw, quilts, hand-made Windsor-style chairs, colonial and nautical wooden clocks, pottery, pierced lampshades, and a wide assortment of oil and watercolor paintings will color the promenade along Stacy Boulevard overlooking Gloucester Harbor.

Sponsored by the Cape Ann Chamber of Commerce and produced by DeWitt Associates of Salisbury, the festival will also feature continuous musical entertainment, an unusual potpourri of foods - ranging from the Paris Crepe Company's delicacies, to home-made fudge, old-fashioned colonial candy, and on Sunday, a Yankee fish fry at Stage Fort Park.

Other activities during the fun-filled weekend include harbor cruises aboard the tall ship "The Providence," a harbor swim, and the on-water military reenactment of the siege of Gloucester by the British. Admission is free, and there is plenty of parking nearby.

Recreation Carnival

The Reading Recreation Department will present a Carnival and Fun Fair on August 19 at Birch Meadow Park next to the high school in Reading. The Midway, with its games of skill and the amusement ride, Moonwalk, will be open until 8:30 p.m. Come to the Carnival and try your luck.

This is one of 50 thrill rides in Shaheen's Fun Park at Salisbury Beach, Mass. Open daily, the admission is free, featuring fireworks every Friday night.

Muscular Dystrophy Telethon Labor Day

TEWKSBURY - The committee for Muscular Dystrophy Labor Day Telethon, to be held at the Oakdale Mall, Rt. 38, Tewksbury, is offering something for everyone. Firefighters from Billerica, Lowell, North Reading, Wilmington and Tewksbury, with the help of their wives and with support of many of the social and fraternal organizations, have a full weekend of family activities planned with the proceeds to go to the Muscular Dystrophy.

This year the Labor Day Weekend Telethon will be having a flea market on both days. If you would wish to donate to the flea market, leave any articles at any of the five local fire stations mentioned above, or call them during the day at their business number to have the articles picked up.

On August 21 and 22 look for the firefighters at the local malls in your community; they will be hosting their annual Tag Days, along with the selling of raffle tickets for a trip for two. The drawing for the trip will take place on the Monday of the Telethon.

Further information on the Telethon will be forthcoming in future articles in this newspaper of all the activities that will be taking place during the Telethon.

US high schools.

"Many of the families coming to us have public school backgrounds - this is their first experience in private school education," notes Jacqueline Leinbach, director of admissions at Lake Forest Academy-Ferry Hall outside Chicago. In her view, what draws them to make the change is the widespread private school reputation for more rigorous academics, more personal attention per student, and a more disciplined atmosphere than they might find in the public schools. Lake Forest-Ferry Hall, for instance, she says, has a dress code ("which students usually grumble about at first") and dismisses anyone found using or in possession of alcohol or drugs. "People really want their children to have that kind of environment," insists Ms. Leinbach.

Also paving the way to higher private school enrollment are improved financial incentives. Though tuition, room, and board charges are more than $6,000 a year at many schools, the kity of financial aid available at the more than 800 American schools that are members of the National Association of Independent Schools (NAIS) has more than doubled over the last decade to a total of $91 million.

"The amount of financial aid money available is just staggering," suggest Karen Hegener, editor in chief of Peterson's Guides, educational reference books that keep a running annual tally on such facts and figures.

Also making private education more affordable is the fact that both parents of most private school pupils usually have jobs. "It's not just the father anymore," says Linda Humphrey, a staff member of the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education.

The recently passed Reagan administration tax-cut package and the expected approval by Congress of tuition tax credits for private education are expected to increase the lure of private schools still further.

Audubon notes

The earliest known windmills, 1000 A.D., are in Seistan, an area of Afghanistan near Iran. In this high, hot region the wind blows up to 70 miles per hour for four months per year. Beneath the millstone, "sails" rotate on a horizontal axis, and a protective wall around the mechanism has slots that increase the wind velocity as it rushes through, according to Massachusetts Audubon.

The 25,000 cargo ships throughout the world burn four million barrels of oil daily and are becoming unprofitable. By contrast, the world's first sailing tanker, the 216-foot Shin Aitoku Maru, which plies the coasts of Asia, saves approximately $500,000 worth of fuel yearly, Massachusetts Audubon reports.

The windpower potential over continental United States and the Aleutian Islands is roughly 10 billion kilowatts, the National Science Foundation reported in 1972. These winds are a predictable national resource, Massachusetts Audubon notes.

Private schools flourish

By Lucia Moutat

It almost looks as if the nation's private high schools haven't heard about the coming enrollment decline.

Even as public high schools brace for mergers and closing as the last of the postwar baby boom students near graduation, private schools are preparing to open their doors next month to a record number of students. One reason: a sizable pot of financial aid for students.

Phillips Exeter Academy in New Hampshire, for instance, will disburse $1.2 million in scholarship grants this year. Almost one-third of the student body will receive some aid. At the same time, the school is so overenrolled that it is converting one house on campus into a dormitory. "We're chock full," says admissions director Jack Herney.

For most private schools, which now educate an estimated 10 percent of the nation's high school students, enrollment has been climbing steadily over the last several years. Reasons range from parents' growing interest in more discipline, structure, and no-frills courses to an erosion of support for public schools, reflected in cuts in tax dollars available and increasingly vocal criticism.

Private schools, accused of stealing students from the public schools, smart at such criticism. But many parents do tend to associate private schools with a more orderly and demanding academic atmosphere. The importance of that kind of environment as a factor in academic success has recently been underscored by sociologist James Coleman in a controversial and much-discussed report on
